MR. GEORGE F. BAKER, whose business is industry, banking, railroading and giving away money, seems to have decided to make his the biggest bank.

The First National Bank is to absorb two other banks, giving Mr. Baker's bank assets of three billions, and making it the biggest bank in the world.

NEW YORK Police Commissioner Whalen, waging aggressive fight on crime, organizes a secret police to spy on gangsters, racketeers, the type of murderers that take their victims for a ride.

The 50 secret policemen will be scattered, not knowing each other, living among the gangsters, pretending to work with them. They will make no arrests, only supply information. An interesting experiment, although secret police plans usually end in trouble.

• • •

AN army man, appointed to suppress Philadelphia's bootlegging, appointed a special body of policemen to deal with that. Investigations showed that the special police were protecting bootleggers and getting the larger share of bootleg money reserved for the police.

Mr. Whalen's secret police should be well insured.

TODAY comes the new small money and government begins saving $1,500,000 on paper and ink. This country gets used to everything soon. Before long the old money will be a curiosity.

Counterfeiting will be more difficult with the new money, and if you care to look at it affectionately, it is more appropriately and beautifully decorated. Makers of pocketbooks and bill-folds will profit.

SEIZE JOINT RAILWAY

...IPING, (Peking), July 10—The Chinese authorities today seized the telegraph administration of the Chinese Eastern railway, arresting 12 Soviet railway officials on the charge of disseminating Communist propaganda. The Chinese Eastern railway is administered jointly by China and Soviet Russia.

NEW SURFACE PROPOSED FOR TWO STREETS

Movement Started for Main St. and Delaware Av. Improvement

NEW PLAN OUTLINED

Property Owners To Have Work Done with City Cooperation

Probable resurfacing of Main st from Columbia st. south to Delaware av. and Delaware av. south to the end of the pavement is seen in a movement of South side residents to raise sufficient funds to purchase materials for the job, which will be done through cooperation of the city service department.

This action on the part of Main st. and Delaware av. residents is being taken to keep pace with the contemplated resurfacing of the uptown section of Main st. as far south as Columbia st. by the city next year.

Would Cover Tracks

If the present movement is a success, the street will be resurfaced from curb to curb with a fairly thick coating of Kentucky rock asphalt or similar cold patch materials. This would eliminate the necessity of removing the street car tracks to secure a smooth pavement, as the tracks would be buried in the patch material.

If this job is carried through on the initiative of the property owners, considerable expense and delay involved in formal advertising for bids and other legislative red tape necessary to paving jobs when done through the city would be avoided.

STRIKE THREATENED BY 45,000 WORKERS

Walkout Voted in Sympathy with New Orleans Street Car Employes

BULLETIN

NEW ORLEANS, July 10—Trolley service will be resumed tomorrow with strikebreakers, the Public Service, Inc., whose employes have been on a strike since last week, announced this afternoon.

Each car will contain a machine gun nest and carry deputy United States marshals armed with shotguns, pistols, tear gas and bombs and lots of ammunition.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 10—A general walkout effecting 45,000 workers and tradesmen, in sympathy with the striking New Orleans street car company employes, was threatened today.

The tentative walkout was voted at an executive session late last night by representatives of a majority of trade unions here and will go into effect if the New Orleans Public Service, Inc., continues its policy of ignor-

COUNTY'S CIGARET FUND DISTRIBUTED

City Receives $729 from Annual Licenses; State Paid $5,702

Marion city will receive an income of $729.39 from the sale of cigaret license for 1929, according to County Auditor Earl E. Thomas, who is about to make the annual distribution of cigaret license fees. The amount going to the city is its share from the sale of two wholesalers' licenses and 103 retail licenses.

Thirty-five retail licenses were sold in the county outside the limits of Marion.

The number of licenses and the amount of revenue for municipalities and townships follows:

Caledonia, four licenses, $24.12; Green Camp, two, $12.25; LaRue, five, $31.92; Morral, two, $12.25; Agosta, one, $6.13; Prospect, five, $35.66; Waldo, two, $12.17; Big Island township, one, $6.13; Claridon township, one, $6.13; Grand Prairie township, two, $12.25; Marion township, five, $30.61; Montgomery township, two, $12.25; Pleasant township, one, $6.12; Scott township, one, $6.13; Tully township, one $6.13.

The state's share of the revenue from the sale of cigaret licenses here is three-fourths of the total, or $5,702.14. The county gets one-eighth, or $950.35, and the townships and municipalities receive a like amount.

The funds remaining in the county are placed in the general funds of the districts.

Two Dead, Third Dying After Auto Skids, Upsets

CLEVELAND, July 10—Two men are dead and a third is near death in a hospital here today from injuries sustained when a car driven by Deputy Marshal Thomas Leigh of Beachwood village, skidded on wet pavement and overturned.

The bodies of Edward Thuran and Walter J. Reed, who died of fractured skulls, were taken to the county morgue.

Hospital attaches described Leigh's condition as critical and planned to take X-ray pictures to ascertain the extent of his injuries.

BURIED IN MINE

Little Hope Held for Ohioan Entombed By Blast

SOMERTON, July 10—Little hope was entertained this morning for George Griffith, 58, who was entombed 180 feet beneath the surface of the earth when his coal mine exploded here late Tuesday.

The small mine had not been worked for some time. Griffith was fixing a pump, preparatory to reopening the mine when, it is believed, an electric spark exploded gas in the shaft, which was shattered.

The force of the explosion hurled pebbles a distance of three-quarters of a mile.

A crowd of nearly 500 persons remained at the scene of the disaster throughout the night.

CITY TO AMEND SPEED LIMITS

Will Change Local Code To Conform with New State Law

HIGHER MARKS FIXED

Measure Adopted by Legislature To Become Effective July 22

City council will amend the local traffic ordinance to conform with the new state speed law recently passed by the legislature, city officials said today. This will be done as soon as a copy of the new speed law is available here.

Conformity of city and state speed limits, beyond which it is deemed reckless to drive, was given special emphasis by a recent ruling of the state supreme court to the effect that municipalities, or cities, could not enforce lower speed limit rules than the state law provides.

Provisions of New Law

The new law, which will go into effect on July 22, will allow maximum speed of 45 miles an hour on the open road, 35 miles an hour in residential districts of towns or cities, and 25 miles an hour in business districts.

Speed limits specified in the present ordinance here allows a speed limit of 25 miles an hour for residential districts and 15 miles an hour for business sections. In the amendment to be adopted these figures will be raised to conform to the state law.

Even if the local ordinance is not rewritten until the new law is in effect, Marion drivers will be governed by the new state regulations immediately after July 22. No noticeable change in driving speeds either within or outside the city are expected by city officials following the date the new faster speeds laws are effective.

Skirts This Fall To Be Just Long Enough To Cover Them

NEW YORK, July 10—Feminine knees will recapture a lost modesty, it was indicated today by the display of gowns worn by the mannequins at the fashion promenade staged by the Garment Retailers of America.

Skirts this fall apparently will be just long enough to cover the knees. The straight-line mode will suffer a partial eclipse, with fullness achieved by numerous variations of the flare.

The Spanish influence seemingly will play an important part in women's wear. This will be particularly true in pajamas, many black, red and yellow designs having been displayed.

Another feature will be the brightness of rainy-day apparel. Black and white raincoats will be in vogue.

Oldest Millionaire of America in 100th Year

WORCESTER, Mass., July 10—America's oldest millionaire, Henry Clay Graton, today entered his one-hundredth year. He observed his ninety-ninth birthday yesterday with a few friends.

Mr. Graton thinks that the American girl of today is losing much of her feminine appeal by smoking, drinking and clothing styles.

Mr. Graton is a descendant, on his mother's side, of Henry Adams, an ancestor of both Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

WEATHER COSTS LIVES OF 10 IN BUCKEYE STATE

Seven Known To Have Drowned in Ohio Streams; Fear for Two More

STORM KILLS TWO

Miami River Takes Its Toll, at Least Two Drowning in Stream

By International News Service

Weather conditions exacted 10 lives in Ohio yesterday, and the death toll may mount to 12, a check up today revealed.

Two persons were killed by lightning during a storm near Steubenville.

The Miami river claimed two lives and two other youths are missing and reported drowned, which may bring the death toll higher. A boy drowned in a gravel pit near Bellefontaine, another life was sacrificed in the Ohio river and a Wayne county youth drowned near Canton.

Donald Hurtline, 15, of Akron, brought the drowned toll to six when he lost his life in a Springfield lake.

One heat prostration was reported. Dustin Phillips, 13, a farmer, collapsed and died while working on his farm at Rising Sun near Toledo.

Carl Gregory, 35, Cleveland, was drowned while swimming near Lorain.

Fear Three Youths Drowned in Miami

DAYTON, July 10—A pall of gloom, which came fast on the heels of the pleasurable excitement of preparing for a canoe race from Dayton to Louisville, Ky., shrouded the Dayton Canoe club today.

One member is known to have drowned, another narrowly escaped that fate, and the whereabouts of two others are held a secret by the swift currents of the Miami river.

William Faber, 18, was drowned yesterday when the canoe in which he was riding plunged over a dam near West Carrollton. Gerald Van Pelt, 17, his companion, escaped by clinging to the canoe. Both were described as expert swimmers.

Two other members of the club, Joseph Kohol and Mallon Lowe, who

DEFICITS REPORTED IN CLINTON COURT

Examiners Say Shortage Totals $2,854.35 in County Probate Office

COLUMBUS, July 10—Deficits, totaling $2,854.35, were discovered in the accounts of the Clinton county probate court in the claim made in a report made public today by State Auditor Joseph Tracy. Of this amount, Probate Judge Hugh J. Wright was held responsible, in the report, for $2,818.84 and former Probate Judge Joseph M. Brandt for the remaining $35.51. The report credits Wright and Brandt with making good these alleged deficits.

The report covers a special examination conducted by State Examiners J. S. Clifton and C. E. Tilton. It deals with the period from Jan. 1, 1925, to April 30, last.

"A deplorable condition," the report declared, was found to have existed "in the department of the probate court in charge of Edgar J. Brant, deputy clerk."

The report not only alleged "carelessness, negligence and inefficiency," but said there was "reason to believe that more serious things have taken place to create the deficit that was found to exist."

FAMILY "BROKE"

Eight 1100 Miles from Home with $1.25; May Auction Flivver

CLEVELAND, July 10 — Eleven hundred miles from home and with only $1.25 in the family treasury, William Wetzel, his wife and their six children, the oldest 9, of Wilton, S. D., were given food and shelter by police here today.

Wetzel started out from Wilton with $50, but had only $1.25 when he and his family arrived here in a battered "Flivver." They were going to visit Mrs. Wetzel's sister in Seneca Falls, N. Y.

If the sister is unable to finance the remainder of their trip, the Wetzel car will be sold at auction to provide funds for their return to South Dakota, police stated.

MARRIES INCE

Ada Williams, 19 year old beauty contest winner, became the bride of William Ince, son of the late Thomas H. Ince, at Beverly Hills, Cal., last Sunday. Mrs. Ince was "Miss Florida" of 1927 and has won numerous other beauty contests.

Seek Postponement of Trial, Evidence Piled Up by Prosecutor

COLUMBUS, July 10—A formal motion requesting postponement of the murder trial of Dr. James Howard Snook, confessed slayer of Miss Theora K. Hix, his sweetheart-paramour, was filed in the Franklin county criminal court at noon today.

The motion requested that the trial, which is scheduled to start July 22, be postponed until the September term of court.

A second motion, pleading for an order directing County Prosecutor John J. Chester, Jr., to submit to the attorneys of Dr. Snook all evidence in connection with the slaying of Miss Hix on the night of June 13 and of the findings of all subsequent investigations, was also filed by John F. Seidel and E. O. Ricketts, attorneys for the former university instructor, who is now being held in the county jail without bond.

Judge Henry L. Scarlett, presiding judge of the criminal court immediately announced that he would hear the motions tomorrow.

2 DEAD, 2 DYING, HURT IN COLLISION

Prominent Canton Architect and Golfer in Massillon Hospital; Cannot Live

CANTON, July 10—Two persons are dead, two others are in Massillon city hospital today and not expected to live, and six more are injured as a result of an automobile collision at McDonaldsville, near here, last night.

The dead: Fremont Snellberger, 32, Canton, and Sally Anderson, 25, Turrell, Pa.

The critically injured: Calvin O. Black, 35, prominent Canton architect, and Bernice Brownsword, 11, Canton.

The others injured were all from Canton. They were: Pierce Jones, 23; Beulah Archer, 21; Louise Brownsword, 23; Jeannette Black, Calvin's wife, 30; Phyllis Black, 8, their daughter, and Arthur Brownsword, 30.

Black's car, in which he, his wife and daughters were riding, collided with a machine driven by Snellberger and containing seven persons.

Black was a member of the Orchard Hills Country club here and was one of the 14 players to finish 18 holes in the Ohio amateur golf tournament yesterday. He had expected to continue play today. Coroner McQuate said he cannot live.

Untin Bowler Ready To Hop for Mount Evans

CHICAGO, July 10—Refueled after its arrival at Port Burwell, Labrador, the Chicago-to-Berlin plane "Untin Bowler" was ready to hop off today for Mount Evans, 700 miles northeast of here, according to radio dispatches received in Chicago.

Pomp of Ancient Florentine Festival Marks Union of U. S. Fortune, Title

NEW HAVEN, July 10—Colored with the pomp of an ancient Florentine festival, social, collegiate and sporting aristocracy attended the $50,000 wedding today which unites the noble Italian house of Gerini with the millions of Sylvester Z. Poli, showman, who came to America a penniless immigrant boy.

The heiress bride was pretty Lillian Madelyn Poli. The groom was the dashing Marquis Lappi Gerini who comes from one of the very first families of Florence. The bride carries a million dollar dowry with her, according to reports, but her father would not confirm this.

Poli started on the road to a great fortune by modeling wax images for the famous Eden Musee. Various excursions into showmanship recently culminated in the selling of his circuit of vaudeville and motion picture houses to William Fox for $20,000,000. The peak in his career of artistic showmanship was reached by Poli in the romantic spectacle set for his daughter's marriage.

Following the beautiful ceremony in picturesque St. John's church, the grass-carpeted Venetian estate of the Polis at Woodmont blazoned forth with flags of the United States and Italy for the wedding reception. A huge striped marquee domed the lawn. More than 2500 guests were invited.

The ushers included an all-star athletic collegiate group. They were Ducky Pond, one of Yale's greatest football halfbacks; Bill Webster, captain of the 1928 Yale

PATHFINDER REFUELED, IS OFF TO ROME

Transatlantic Craft, Piloted by Williams and Yancey, Forced To Land in Spain When Gasoline Supply Runs Out; To Reach Eternal City Tonight

AIRMEN FLY 3,000 MILES IN 30 1-2 HOURS

Flier Tells How He Became Violently Sick on Flight; Ship Flew at Height of 12,000 Feet in Mid-Atlantic; Rome Plans Great Welcome

ROME, July 10—The transatlantic monoplane Pathfinder, with Roger Q. Williams and Lewis Yancey, which was compelled by fuel shortage to land near Santander, Spain, while attempting a non-stop flight from Old Orchard, Me., to Rome, is expected to arrive here between 9 and 10 o'clock tonight.

News from Santander that the Pathfinder had hopped off at 11:18 a. m., Spanish time, caused rejoicing throughout Rome. Preparations for the welcome of the brave airmen were rushed to completion. If the plane does not arrive before sundown beacons will be lighted in all the air fields around the city and kept burning until the airmen are safely on the ground.

The airline distance from Santander is approximately 850 miles, but advices indicated that the Americans were taking a longer course by way of France, which would stretch the distance covered to about 1,000 miles or more.

Under State Secretary Balbo and other officials were awaiting the Pathfinder at the Littorio airdrome last night when they were informed by International News Service that the plane had been forced to land near Santander, Spain.

Senor Balbo said he was glad to know that the two fliers had crossed the ocean without accident, but regretted they were unable to continue on their way to Rome without a stop.

The under secretary ordered five Italian military planes to meet the Pathfinder and escort it to the Littorio field where the official reception to the fliers will be held.

SANTANDER, Spain, July 10—The transatlantic monoplane Pathfinder, which was forced by lack of fuel to land here after a flight from Old Orchard, Me., hopped off for Rome at 11:18 o'clock a. m., Spanish time, or 6:18 New York time.

The Pathfinder was refueled and overhauled during the morning and was found to be in perfect condition for continuation of the flight.

The airmen—Roger Q. Williams and Lewis Yancey—said they were confident they could finish the flight without a stop, reaching Rome tonight.

"We regret that we could not make the flight in a single hop as we anticipated, but the long voyage over the Atlantic through misty weather was an achievement that gave us much satisfaction," said Williams.

Plane Examined

A large crowd gathered at the Albericia airfield to give the fliers a send off.

The airmen flew nearly 3,000 miles from Old Orchard to Albericia in about 31 hours and 30 minutes, landing at 9:30 o'clock Spanish time last night.

Williams was at the controls when the Pathfinder took off. He headed the plane northward, then veered sharply to the east following the coast line. He disappeared from view in three minutes after the plane took the air.

Mounted police patrolled the air field, keeping back the crowd.

The airmen had a good night's rest and were greatly refreshed after their long vigil over the sea. They left their hotel shortly after 9 o'clock, driving in an automobile to the air field. There they made a careful examination of the Pathfinder, especially the motor. When they finished they told mechanics at the field that everything was satisfactory and that they would hop off within a few hours for the Eternal City.

Perfect Crossing

Spanish officials shook hands with the Americans in farewell and wished them a speedy and successful flight to Rome.

The plane was covered with inscriptions when it left Albericia. Many persons who got near enough wrote their signatures upon the wings and body and there were many such inscriptions as "Viva United States."

The crowd at the field kept gathering throughout the morning and there were thousands held back by the police lines when Williams made his perfect take off. The crowd cheered and tossed hats into the air until the plane dwindled to a speck in the sky and then disappeared entirely.

Cheated of their objective by some 850 miles, Williams and Yancey yet have a perfect transatlantic crossing to their credit, achieved in spite of the handicap of a dense fog through which they were forced to plough during almost all of the 31½-hour journey.

Gas Gives Out

The Pathfinder, its motor functioning perfectly but its gasoline supply diminishing with alarming rapidity, came to rest at the Albericia aerodrome about four miles outside of Santander at 4:40 p. m., New York time yesterday. The descent was made eight and a half hours before the airmen considered it would be necessary, for they thought they had sufficient fuel for 40 hours in the air—enough to carry them straight to Rome without any stop on the way.

Williams and Yancey found that the vagaries of the winds above the ocean had led them over almost exactly the same course followed by Jean Assolant, Rene LeFevre and Armeno Lotti in the Yellow Bird. It was almost as if the French plane had marked out a curveless road

FAILS TO EQUAL DISTANCE MARK

NEW YORK, July 10—The flight of the "Pathfinder," from Old Orchard, Me., to Santander, Spain, failed by many miles to equal the record for long distance flights.

The air line distance from Old Orchard to Santander is approximately 3,400 miles. The long distance record made last year by Capt. Arturi Ferrarin and Maj. Carlo Delprete of Italy in a nonstop hop from Rome to Brazil is 4,763.7 miles.

The previous record was held by Clarence Chamberlin and Charles Levine who flew 3,911 miles from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., to Kottbus, Germany.

The distance record for lighter-than-air craft is held by the Graf Zeppelin, which covered 6,630 miles in its cruise from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, N. J.

COUNTY ROAD LEVY RESOLUTION PASSED

Commissioners Take Action to Place Two-Mill Proposal on Ballot

A resolution preliminary to placing the proposed two-mill levy for road purposes on the ballots for the November elections was adopted by the board of county commissioners yesterday afternoon.

The levy, if passed by the voters at the November election, will not add to the present tax rate but will simply be a continuation of the present two-mill rate for road purposes. The present levy, passed five years ago, expires this year.

In order to maintain the income of approximately $180,000 for road purposes the levy must be repassed next fall for another five-year period.

The income from the two-mill levy is the only source of revenue the county has for road work with the exception of gasoline and automobile license tax. This source brought the county about $90,000 last year.

CORSET SAVES HER

Connecticut Woman Glad She's Old Fashioned; Halts Bullet

GREENWICH, Conn., July 10—Mrs. William O. Remsen, a guest of the Maples hotel here, is glad she is old-fashioned enough to wear corsets.

Her corset saved her from possible death when she was struck by a 22-caliber bullet fired from a toy pistol by a boy who was playing near her window.

The youngster attempted to shoot a bird, but the bullet entered the window and drilled a hole in Mrs. Remsen's corset. Thanks to several yards of elastic brocade and whalebone, the bullet inflicted only a flesh wound.

QUESTION DEATHS

Seek To Learn If Lightning or Live Wire Killed Two Workmen

STEUBENVILLE, July 10—Jefferson county authorities were today trying to determine whether two men who were killed at the Piney Fork sub-station of the Ohio Power Co. were victims of lightning or came in contact with a live wire.

The dead men are Charles E. Beegle, 35, of Martins Ferry, and William O. Smith, 55, of Bridgeport.

Joseph Conners, of Wheeling, was holding an iron pin which Smith was driving into the ground late yesterday. There was a sudden flash and Smith and Beegle, who was at the side of Smith, were killed. Conners was slightly injured.

There was an electrical storm at the time, and lightning may have caused the deaths.

BACK IN JAIL

COLUMBUS, July 10—Edward Snyder, 52, known to local police as the "most arrested" man in town, is back in city jail again today. He was taken into custody on intoxication charges. Police estimated that he has been arrested more than 60 times.

Speculative Interest Returns To Utilities, Specialties

BULLS TRIM BEARS AS PRICES START CLIMB

Battle Royal Staged Over Radio and Columbia Graphophone

MERGER REPORTS HELP

Bulls Unable To Push Railroad Stocks to Higher Levels

BY W. S. COUSINS
I. N. S. Financial Editor

NEW YORK, July 10—Speculative interest in the stock market today returned to the public utility stocks and high-priced specialties, many of which have been on the inactive list for the last few weeks. Bulls and bears shortly afternoon staged a battle royal over Radio, Columbia Graphophone and a few other active shares, the bears carrying off the honors at the start, but showing the white feather when the market displayed signs of stiffening.

When the bulls found it impossible to push up the railroad stocks on the strength of the extremely favorable car loadings reports, they turned their attention to the utilities. The dwindling market supply of these stocks made it comparatively easy to wear down the bears, who always become alarmed over swiftly rising prices. Consolidated Gas was quick to assume leadership in the utilities, its 4-point jump to 133 1-2 accompanying reports of an early consummation of the New York City utility merger.

Early Americans were shot at by Indians. Later ones—well, read the news about the border warfare.

CLEARINGS HIGH

Bank clearings have remained high this week, yesterday's record standing at $109,384.12, reports from clearing headquarters at the National City Bank & Trust Co. show. However, these figures do not compare favorably with last Tuesday when $181,860.21 was reported cleared, the largest single day of the year.

Man Jumps to Death from Hotel in Detroit

DETROIT, July 10—Diving from the fourteenth floor of a downtown hotel, a man who was registered under the name of W. H. Houtley, of San Francisco, was killed here today.

Discovery of a physician's name-plate, bearing the name "W. H. Baffer," among the man's effects led police to believe he may have been living under an assumed name, Houtley had been registered at the hotel here since July 3

Athough only about 5 per cent of men are color blind, according to an ophthalmic surgeon, red and green are two of the colors men often cannot distinguish between. Hence they cannot join either the navy or the railway service.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Local markets were made more attractive this morning by the appearance of some new pears from California. They are quite colorful and look to be very delicious. These will cost 10 cents for three.

The pears, which are very similar to what is known here as the Bartlett, is named the Wilder pear. They come from California and are carefully sorted and packed. The price is high, but the fruit is select

Other market items are quiet. No changes have been reported for weeks in most of the items. Blackberries are still selling at 20 cents a quart, a price they hit nearly three weeks ago. All melon prices are unchanged, most melons selling between 50 cents and $1 while cantaloupes sell between 10 and 20 cents. Honey dew melons range from 30 to 45 cents each.

Sweet corn, "corn on the cob," or roasting ears, whichever name you prefer, has not arrived here in quantities as it is doing at most city markets. There are a few bare dozen available here, these selling at 60 cents a dozen. Grocers report other cities offer huge stacks of the unhusked ears for sale.

Today's Review of Yesterday's Grain

CHICAGO, July 10—An array of bearish news caused steady local and commission house selling of wheat yesterday after a firmer opening based on strong cables. To the pressure of longs unloading was added the weight of Southwest hedging sales in substantial volume. Prices were erratic early, but gradually declined and then broke sharply just before the close as the demand was filled.

Corn was also sold by locals throughout the session, but the market maintained a stubborn tone until affected by the late break in wheat, when prices receded sharply. Oats and rye were comparatively weak on the late break.

At the close wheat prices were within a fraction of the lows, though good support was in evidence at this point. They registered net declines of 2⅜@2¾ for the day. Corn was 1⅛@2⅛c down; oats ⅞@1⅛c lower; and rye 3⅝@4c down. Winnipeg wheat futures finished 1⅞@2⅞c off, while Liverpool closed 2@2⅛c up.

Locals Take Profits

While crop news from the Northwest was still very bullish rains over the week-end had taken the sensationalism out of the reports, at least temporarily, and locals were inclined to accept profits before the customary uncertain market action attendant upon the government report, due today. With less attention centered in the Northwest, the bearish reports of pressure of Southwest wheat, which is failing to find an export outlet because of competition from Argentine offers, had more effect, especially as they were accompanied by hedging sales.

Further rains were indicated in the Canadian northwest over night and Winnipeg was weaker than for several days past with some local tendency to accept profits noted there. However, the late official report of rains showed they were very light, but the effect of this was offset by advices of rains in Argentine. The latter were unconfirmed as markets in that country were closed for a holiday.

Expectations for the government estimate to be issued after the close of trading today were in general that it may show a slightly higher yield than the average of the private experts. The latter placed the yield of winter wheat at 601,000,000 bu and spring wheat at 251,000,000 bu. News from Washington Monday to the effect that the report may include information received up to noon today, which might lower the spring estimate, judging from advices received from that section since July 1, the date on which private figures were based.

December Corn Weak

Rather prominent local selling was on in the corn pit in the early trade, based mainly on the rains received over the belt coupled with warmth, a favorable combination. The December delivery as relatively the weakest, with near months firm on the favorable side of spreading operations and because of a stronger cash market with lighter country offerings.

The basis for cash corn was relatively steady. Local shipping sales totaled 150,000 bu. while bookings to arrive were 47,000 bu.

In the cash market wheat was unchanged to 1c lower; corn steady to 1c higher; oats ½c down; rye dull, and barley steady.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 7; corn, 109; oats, 27; rye, none, and barley, 5

More cars with which a young man has to save to get married, the more he values marriage.

Competition is the life of trade; and it also reduces some of the competitors to starvation. It has faults.

... prizes amounting ... to the winners ... will be $500. Second ... $250. Third prize will ... prizes are fourth ... sixth, $15; seventh ... to seventeenth $5.

ur Answers Required

... contestants will be ... ver four simple questions ... each of the slogans or trade marks published and to write an essay. The contest will not be difficult and anyone who follows the advertising in The Star should have no difficulty in answering the questions. All the slogans or trade marks to be used in the contest are regularly published in The Star Advertising columns.

Judges for the contest will be three disinterested Marion residents. The winners will be chosen on a basis of the number of questions correctly answered and the quality of their essay. The contest will be open to all except employes of The Star and their immediate families. It is not necessary that the contestant be a subscriber to The Star.

Published Weekly

The first question about the slogans will be published in The Star on Saturday July 13. The second question will follow on Saturday July 20. The third will be published Saturday July 27 and the fourth on Saturday Aug. ... The c... [illegible] ... Saturday, Aug 10.

Contestants will save the contest page from The Star each week and will write the answer in the space provided. When questions on all four pages have been answered the contestant will mail them to The Star. Contest pages must not be mailed one at a time. The pages must be at The Star by noon Saturday Aug 10. On Saturday Aug 17 a complete list of the winners will be published.

Stores and business houses represented in the contest have agreed to give contestants information concerning the slogans and trade-marks. They will not however give the information by telephone. Contestants must call in person at the stores or business houses. It is not necessary that contestants make purchases in order to be eligible to participate in the contest. The correct answer to the questions to be asked in the contest can be obtained from the firms listed in the contest.

Fourth In Ohio

The contest planned by The Star will be the fourth of its kind staged by newspapers in Ohio cities. Where the contests have already been held reports show that they have attracted the greatest interest of any contest in many years.

This advertisement gives you only a very small list of the stock we have on hand and space will only allow us to enumerate a fraction of it at a time. We want you to know however that every item in this big hardware store is going at drastic PRICE CUTS—every price has been reduced down to the lowest possible level for the class of merchandise this store has always sold. We never handled merchandise of questionable origin or of doubtful quality and make—inferior goods have never found a place in this store—in other words we never sold anything we could not "stand behind" and recommend to the limit. That policy will prevail right up to the last minute.

Daily Proverb—"Some are born great, some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon them."

The race for size goes on. By the absorption of two other financial institutions, the National City bank, of New York, now has assets in excess of $2,000,000,000.

A groundhog weighing twenty-three pounds was killed this week near Maple Glen, Pennsylvania. Even our animal life seems to have acquired the popular urge for bigness.

Two Italian steamship lines are to begin at once the construction of two 40,000-ton liners to be used by them in common in the North Atlantic service. The combination trend has spread to the sea.

Those "slight" shocks out in Los Angeles, "believed to have been earthquakes," were sufficient to cause the dome of the city hall out there to oscillate a foot. It may be just as well for the City of the Angels that the shocks were "slight."

A painting, six by eight inches in size, by David Teniers, the Flemish old master, and valued at $25,000, has been carried off from the Antwerp museum. That settles it. When we go in for old masters, we're going to buy 'em big so people can't chase off with them under their coats.

All the military guards have been removed from Mexican trains, save a few on the Southern Pacific, which means that our sister republic to the south is enjoying another breathing spell between revolutions.

The supreme court of Michigan has decided that a young man was justified in breaking his engagement to marry a Grand Rapids girl when he discovered that she made home brew and that she has no ground for a breach-of-promise proceeding against him. It's simply amazing how what might be deemed an asset by some is viewed as a liability by others.

A St. Louis-Chicago bus, in an endeavor to avoid hitting two motorcyclists, ran off the roadway near Mulberry Grove, Illinois, injuring all of the thirteen passengers. But what could passengers willing to defy fate like that expect?

The girls of Charleston, Illinois, have been warned by the chief of police out there that stockingless girls who appear on the streets will be jailed. Of course, it may be something of a job to pick 'em out in this day of tanned legs, but maybe the Charleston police chief figures that he can depend on the mosquito bites and varicose veins to detect the bare ones.

From the Wisdom of Ninety.

"I may be old-fashioned," John D. Rockefeller said in a statement to the press made at Pocantico Hills, where he celebrated his ninetieth birthday anniversary very quietly with his family, Monday, "but I believe that people should live simpler and saner lives. Better health and greater happiness will be the result."

Mr. Rockefeller's statement went on to say that he was in perfect health, a condition which he attributed to his philosophy of living based on moderation and quiet activity. "I have every reason to be grateful on my ninetieth birthday," he said. "Everybody has been kind and good to me all the years. With perfect health and full of hope and cheer for the future, I have nothing but kindness and good will for everybody."

Thus speaks the dean of all the world figures of today, for Clemenceau, who most nearly approaches his age, is but eighty-seven. George Haven Putnam, the well-known publisher, is five years his junior, and President von Hindenburg and Thomas A. Edison are but eighty-two.

As a general proposition, it is safer to pay heed to the counsel of one who speaks from the light of experience than to follow the advice of one whose views are based on theory. If this be true, the counsel of Mr. Rockefeller on the subject of living should carry great weight, for since he retired from business activities thirty years ago his life has been devoted to the pursuit of health and happiness. At that time he was a semi-invalid. In fact, great concern was felt for his health by those close to him. It was then that he inaugurated his campaign to regain his health through the exercising of care in the matter of diet and his mode of living, which resulted in the manner set out by him on the occasion of the reaching of the ninetieth milestone on his life journey.

Laying aside the observation of this nonagenarian, does not one's better judgment say to the most of us that we are moving at too fast a pace, that we are intemperate in our eating, in our business activities, in our social pleasures and in our recreations? Is it not a fact that the most of us are burning the candle at both ends in this feverish game which we call living?

Banner Year for Panama Canal.

The present promises to be the banner calendar year of the Panama canal in the matter of productive tonnage handled, and thus naturally also in the matter of tolls. The first six months of the year 3,228 commercial vessels passed through the great waterway on which tolls to the amount of $13,784,081.53 were collected, a gain over the tolls for the corresponding months of 1928 of over $760,000. Should the last six months of 1929 prove as productive in revenues as the first half of the year, the total tolls will be in excess of $27,500,000, which will break all records for the canal. Some contrast between $27,500,000 and $6,172,829 collected by way of tolls ten years ago!

The investment of the United States in the fixed property of the canal is $237,074,172 and there is an additional sum of $5,136,758 invested in canal transit equipment. This by no means represents the sum of our investment in the canal zone. Some years ago a part of the total cost of the canal was written off to national defense. The total thus written off, which now stands at $112,127,338, represents the cost of features and additional facilities, not including fortifications, military post, submarine bases and such matters, but included in the design of the canal for military or naval reasons, which could have been omitted had the canal been intended to serve commercial purposes only, and it includes also the $40,000,00 paid to the French.

Thus, for the purpose of figuring the canal as a commercial enterprise, its cost may be placed at the figure stated, $237,074,172. In the fiscal year, 1928, the net income of the canal from tolls, taxes, licenses, fees, fines, postal receipts and such sources was $18,221,815, and the net profits of auxiliary business operations was $736,719, a total of $18,961,561. Considering the big gain in revenues for the first half of the present calendar year over the similar period in the calendar year of 1928, the net profits for the present calendar year should closely approximate $20,000,000, which is a decidedly good return from an investment of $237,074,172.

It is a matter of common knowledge that the Panama canal was constructed primarily as a defense measure, that we might send our war vessels from one ocean to the other without making the long trip around Cape Horn or through the Straits of Magellan, the problem so splendidly negotiated by the Oregon during the Spanish-American war. The most enthusiastic champion of the canal at the time of its construction could hardly have imagined any such return as herein indicated from its use for commercial purposes. Yet the fact remains that the canal, as a commercial enterprise, is proving a fair investment, and there is every indication that the yearly increase in tonnage handled in years past will continue in the years to come.

Figuring on the 8,574,000,000 pounds consumed the first half of the year, it is estimated that the consumption of sugar in the United States in 1929 will be approximately 13,000,000,000 pounds. Before concluding that the country has an abnormally-developed sweet tooth, it may be well to know if the figures given include the "corn" variety.

Occasionally an American is slain down in Mexico, but it's worth noting that but a few days elapse till we read of the facing of a firing squad by his slayer. Killing Americans is not the great outdoor sport it once was down in Mexico.

Customs officials in Washington have decided that the edition of Voltaire's "Candide" held up in Boston is not obscene and may be admitted into the country. While the customs people, of course, have no control over the latter, the holding up of "Candide" while permitting the sale of the sex magazines was something of a joke on the country.

From Baltimore comes the report that residents of a suburb of that city have been seeing a six-foot rattlesnake recently. Considering some of the stories relating to liquid conditions in that city, it's a wonder it wasn't a twenty-six-foot python covered with bright blue and pink polka dots.

Mrs. Mabelle Gilman Corey and Prince Luis de Bourbon are said to have resumed consideration of their project to marry, which is said to have been abandoned when Mabelle refused to agree to more than $1,000 a month for pocket money for the Spanish king's cousin. Maybe Mabelle has raised the ante.

Opium valued at $1,000,000 was found in the baggage of the wife of the Chinese vice consul in San Francisco, upon her return from a visit to China, Monday, and seized by customs officials. At this distance, it looks like playing the consular privilege of immunity from baggage inspection pretty strong.

The Colonial Western Airways, Inc., owner of the machine in which seventeen persons were killed in a crash near Newark, New Jersey, has been sued for $150,000 damages for causing the deaths of two of the seventeen. If there are recoveries for the deaths of all the dead anything like what is asked by the the two, the situation will be bound to prove mighty discouraging to commercial air development.

We of America may have been a bit tardy in getting into aviation in a commercial way, but today our air mail and our air-rail transcontinental systems are without peers, and it's worth noting that an American pilot in an American plane opened an air mail route in China, a day or two ago.

The United States collector of customs at Duluth, recently suspended under charges of drunkenness, conspiracy to extort money from a narcotic law violator, conspiracy to falsify government accounts, and conspiracy to smuggle liquor across the international boundary, has resigned to "relieve the government of any possible embarrassment in the investigation." Possibly his action was also something of a relief to the service.

THE CHAMPION.

Light Vital to Health.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Recently I read an interesting editorial in the Aerologist, a journal devoted to the idea of proper ventilation. I wish to quote a paragraph or two.

"The engineer has exceeded our most sanguine expectations in developing apparatus for mechanical ventilation indoors. Laws have been placed on the statute books making ventilation compulsory. But in spite of all this, the valleys and peaks of the mortality curves year after year remain practically unchanged. Why is this so?

"Life follows the sun. * * * Not only is the sun the great giver of life and health, but the great benefits of outdoor life, particularly during the warm summer months, are from the sun and not from the air.

"From the earliest times people have confused the beneficial effects of sunshine with the effects of air. We have been advised to live out-of-doors. The virtues of outdoor air has been extolled. The open window has been proclaimed from the house tops under the false impression that the great benefit of outdoor life was the air, when as a matter of fact, the air has very little to do with it.

"It is the sunlight, the sky-shine, the ultra violet rays, and perhaps countless other energy emanations from them that make the great difference between outdoors and indoors."

If we have failed to observe the importance of light we have overlooked a vital, perhaps the vital, factor in health production. We just can not thrive without it.

For years I have battled to make the senate chamber a liveable place. Now it is a thermos bottle, cut off from outside light and air. It pains me to see the senators fade and age, far more rapidly than years demand. We can not be healthy and vigorous without light. It is essential to existence.

I am much interested in the increasing popularity of the many devices that supply ultra-violet light. The lamps are ingenious, but what is more important, they are health-promoting, I firmly believe.

Get all the sunshine and skyshine you possibly can. It will help you to live long and happily.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

Worried Reader. Q—What is the cause of hives? Can they be cured?

A—A nervous condition, constipation, foods which cause irritation, in some instances a kidney condition may be responsible for hives. Locate the cause and treatment can be advised.

* * *

C.C. Q—What do you advise for an enlarged thyroid gland?

2—Would this cause neurasthenia?

A—First consideration must be given to building up the general health. The simple internal medication should be prescribed by the family doctor.

2—Yes.

Editorial Opinion.

BISHOP CANNON NOT BEING PERSECUTED.

It was natural for the board of temperance and social service of the Methodist Episcopal Church South to pass a resolution expressing "confidence in the leadership of Bishop James Cannon, Jr.," its president. Unquestionably, too, Bishop Cannon is a leader, and a vigorous one. Beside being an aggressive church man, he is something of a political organizer and strategist.

But justification for the explanation of the board that its action was taken in view of "recent attacks on Bishop Cannon, instigated by enemies of prohibition" is not so easy to find.

Presumably the makers of the Cannon resolution had in mind some of the prevalent comment regarding the bishop's stock market experiences, and it is true that the wets have been far from slow about making pungent and acrid remarks regarding the clergyman's record as a plunger. But it can not in fairness be said that these "attacks" were instigated by enemies of prohibition unless it can be shown that wet miscreants induced Bishop Cannon to try his luck as a speculator and deliberately led him as a lamb to the slaughter in order to get him "in a hole." The gentleman himself advances no such defense. His explanation is that he thought he was "investing."

Representatives of the defunct brokerage house—it was the production of their books in court that gave publicity to Bishop Cannon's career as a dabbler in the market—do not, however, seem to have understood the matter that way. They appear to have been under the impression that the clergyman knew just what he was doing. However, that is not altogether the immediate question. The point is, there is no visible doubt about the essential facts serving as basis of the criticism of Bishop Cannon, and criticism is by no means confined to "wets." One of the most severe comments we have come across was made by a dry newspaper, the Springfield Republican, which says that "Bishop Cannon has hopelessly discredited his influence" by his record in the stock market, and that he "has become a handicap to any public cause which he espouses and which must encounter the attacks of embittered opponents."—Detroit Free Press.

PASSING OF A DISTINGUISHED OFFICER.

Rear Admiral Edward W. Eberle lived for less than a year after his retirement from active service in the United States navy. Small of stature, bearded and wearing eye glasses, he looked more like a distinguished professional man or a foreign diplomat than the former commander-in-chief of the United States fleet. But his career emphasized the fact that the commander of modern fighting ships needs not physical strength so much as the qualities of leadership, courage and sagacity, coupled with scientific attainment; and all these may be contained in a small body.

Admiral Eberle saw forty-seven years of active naval service, commanded the for'rd turret of the Oregon at the battle of Santiago, was left "high and dry" with an assignment as superintendent of the Naval academy at Annapolis during the World war and a few years later raised the flag of a full admiral upon the Pacific coast—commander-in-chief of the fleet. Gunnery, aviation, wireless communications, smoke screens, secret codes, torpedoes were some of the branches of naval enterprise in which he made extraordinary contributions of invention, coordination and development. His four years' service as chief of naval operations set a model for administrative efficiency. He was president of the navy's general board when retired for age.

Admiral Eberle was a personification of the modern scientific type that controls the force of gigantic machines and organizations by a nod and the touch of a finger and hurls or withholds the thunderbolt with a simple word of command.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Capri—Isle of Sirens.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Naples is certainly the gateway to some of the most glorious spots in the world. And one of these spots is the Island of Capri. If you crave forgetfulness of all the material cares of the world, go to Capri. If you fear that comfortable feeling of insouciance, stay away, for in Capri there is nothing but beauty and the joy of living in the immediate present.

Capri, the Isle of Sirens, is in the Bay of Naples, just a short steaming distance from the city. It is but a tiny island—only three miles long and one mile wide—but in it is crammed more sheer beauty than in any comparable territory in the world.

Along the shore of Capri cliffs rise to an average height of 900 feet while back of them, towering to a height of 2,000 feet above the sea, is Monte Solaro. One can ascend Solaro by means of an inclined railway. The town of Capri rests on the saddle of the mountain.

Perhaps the best-known spot on Capri is the famous Blue grotto. The limestone cliffs of Capri have been resisting the Mediterranean waves for centuries, and in the process numerous grottoes have been cut into the rock. The largest of these is the Blue grotto which derives its name from the blue aura which covers everything.

One enters the Blue grotto through an opening not more than three feet high. One must crouch or lie down in the small boat as it passes through the small opening. But once inside, the grotto opens out becoming forty feet high. It extends back into the rock for 200 feet.

If the illumination within the grotto were dependent upon the light admitted by the opening, one would be able to see for only a short distance beyond the "doorway." This is not the case, however. Below the surface of the water is a huge submerged arch and sunlight is refracted through the water into the cavern. This is what causes the wonderful blue coloring which has won—and justly—the fame which the grotto enjoys.

Investigation has shown that this submerged arch was once above the level of the water. There are steps cut in the sides and it is believed that these steps were cut and used in those days long ago, when Capri was the residence of the Roman emperors.

Pompeii, some twelve miles from Naples is another spot which should be visited. The ruins of this old Roman seaside resort, buried by the eruption of Vesuvius in the year 79, are gradually being uncovered and one may study the relics of a past glory and civilization. The Forum, over 500 feet long and more than 100 feet wide, the Basilica, the amphitheater, temples and residences have been uncovered and despite the centuries which have passed since they were covered by ashes, they show a wonderful degree of preservation and to one who sometimes wonders about the civilizations which have gone before, they prove an adequate and interesting textbook.—Copyright, 1929, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, July 10—The beautiful show girls these days are content with just being beautiful. They no longer feel the "higher urge." Nearly all glorified beauties of ten years ago splashed the first pages by marrying noblemen or rising to stardom on the screen or stage.

Billie Dove, Mary Eaton, Mae Murray, Katherine Perry and several others now topliming in Hollywood were Ziegfeld girls. Jessica Brown and the most famous show girl of all Dolores, married rich titles. Claire Luce, the blonde dancing beauty, now plays legitimate leads. Barbara Stanwyck came out of the cabarets.

Today the same types of girls seem wholly satisfied with the fleeting fame of a slinking walk, simpering smiles and a voiceless part. Their more worthy sisters seized the same opportunities and made them stepping stones for Pyrenian triumphs. The show girl had the best "break" in the theatrical world.

But in the professional past four years few have achieved recognition beyond the original role of clothes horse. After a performance they are seen nightly in the night clubs and the sandwich palaces with those slick-haired boys who are quite willing to settle a $50 check just to be seen with them.

The $75 weekly salary and the scant publicity that goes with the job are apparently all they desire. Movie producers report most of them are unwilling to arise at a reasonable hour for voice and screen tests. Their's is the languor of the chiffon ladies who infuriate in upper West Side "love nests."

The original group of show girls were ever striving for something better. They posed for artists and advertising photographers on the side. They accepted small bits in the movies by day and studied voice and dramatics at night. The present crop is content to drift. And cadge.

"Beautiful but Dumb" is no mere phrase. It is, for instance, noticeable that in many successes on the stage last season leading parts were played by girls without beauty. But they dripped personality and were not unwilling to work for a place in the spot. Feminine beauty is not so much any more anyway.

Feeding Platforms for Swine Expected to Result in e Sanitary Conditions; New Hauling Arrangement Is Worked Out

Plans Not Completed

Complete details of plans for operating the farm have not been outlined nor is it yet known how many swine the garbage output will feed However a program of feeding by several times larger than the former one will be carried out and may provide food for several carloads of swine

Formerly, the city garbage was hauled to the dumping grounds near the old incinerator about two miles west of Marion on the Agosta pk From there the former caretaker would haul the garbage a half mile . . . er to the farm where it would be fed to the swine All garbage undesirable for feeding was left at the old incinerator Under the new plan, the city will haul the garbage directly to the farm and will receive a fee for the extra distance Here all parts suitable for feeding will be handled the refuse being raked up and later hauled away

Increased Efficiency

City officials are pleased to note the thoroughness with which the new company intends to handle the garbage The efficiency of their plans is made possible by the fact that they have handled the entire garbage output of several large Ohio cities

By hauling the garbage directly to the city farm, many families will be disappointed Almost any night, after regular working hours one might see several carloads of persons raking over the old garbage in search of articles of value With the garbage taken directly to the farm they do not get a chance to sort out the desirable iron and other valuable metal pieces

There is no report of any of these persons finding articles of more than little value, as they simply aim to pick up scrap iron and odd useful pieces in order to earn a few dollars . . . However articles of value are often misplaced and are taken up with the garbage If these are found, they are never reported officials say

Find Lost Purse

One woman misplaced a $25 purse This was removed with the rubbish and hauled to the city dumping lot northwest of Marion on Garden City pk. The woman discovered the loss and asked two of the department to search for the purse After raking over several tons of rubbish it was located and returned, little worse for the trip

Few citizens are aware of the volume of garbage handled through the department of O A Benedict director of public service A weekly output of 15 tons of garbage is the average for Marion This amount must be collected and hauled to proper disposal sources. To do this there are three three ton trailers made of steel and two trucks, one five ton Dodge and a two-ton Ford all of which have water tight beds They are operated from early morning until night six days a week to handle the city garbage

This service is financed by assessing subscribers a small amount each month to have the garbage removed weekly There are now 3,500 subscribers to the service In the up town section where there are restaurants and hotels, trips are sometimes made daily, in order to handle large quantities.

Former Disposal Methods

A few years ago, there was no such service and it is no small mystery just what became of the garbage of Marion Some of it was hauled to the old dumping lot at the corner of Greenwood and Patton sts. which was formerly an old quarry This was filled up two years ago and the city did not use it further However many continued to use it as a dump It has been recently cleaned up and leveled and may be offered for sale soon

Several large wagon bed trailers are used to remove the city rubbish This is hauled to the lot on the Garden City pk Much of this is reclaimable, and for that purpose Frank Yalo can be seen raking the rubbish for valuable pieces Old shoes, scrap iron and other odd pieces are saved and later marketed In addition to this he also receives a small fee from the city to keep the dumping lot level and to assist in unloading the rubbish

SUPER-SECRET BODY OF POLICE FORMED

Whalen Would Have Men Mingle with Underworld Gang Leaders for Clues

NEW YORK July 10—Failure of the New York police to make any headway in solving the Marlow, Rothstein Yale, and other recent gang murders resulted today in one of the most startling innovations in the history of the department, the creation of a super secret body within the detective bureau the members of which will mingle with gang leaders

Organization of the bureau the actual operation of which will put to shame the most fantastic secret service or detective fiction was announced today by Police Commissioner Whalen

A fund of $50,000 has already been set aside for the initial work of the 50 operatives assigned to begin the bureau's work

To Mingle With Gangs

They will carry no shields equipment or identification of any kind and will be allowed to make no arrests Nor will they be required or even permitted to assist officially in any police investigation or prosecution

Their sole duties will be to mingle with various gangs and underworld characters so that when such a murder as Marlow's occurs, the department instantly will know what men might have plotted the death and what men might have carried it out, together with all the motives and reasons

They will make their reports in three ways—by mail, over the secret telephone lines and by word of mouth to other agents who will meet them at rendezvous, give them money and carry back the information to the offices Full reports of all the characters they observe will be filed at the bureau headquarters under another set of numbers The identity of the underworld characters will be concealed in another master file.

To Stamp Out Crime

The agents will be instructed not to bother with vice or gambling except where a ring is involved that might resort to crimes of violence

All underworld groups, however, will be closely watched, as well as individual 'lone wolves' who commit crimes of violence

Commissioner Whalen said he was determined to stamp out gangs in New York and felt that such a bureau—modelled upon existing ones in European capitals—was the only manner in which he could do so.

Patrolman Calls Him

He pointed out that only one man in the entire police department had been able to give him any information on the Marlow case—and that man was an ordinary patrolman who had used his eyes on his beat.

Patrolman Timothy Nusseron, he said telephoned the detective division of his own precinct to report—following the murder of Marlow that he had seen the racketeer dining with friends at a restaurant in his beat a few hours before the murder It was only because of the patrolman's information that Commissioner Whalen was enabled to obtain the material with whom he hopes may help to solve the case

New CHEVROLET Sixes on the road since Jan. 1st!

Today's Chevrolet is scoring a huge nationwide success because it represents one of the most sensational achievements in automotive history—a Six in the price range of the four.

Until you actually drive this remarkable car, you cannot appreciate how smooth, quiet and comfortable a low-priced automobile can be. Due to superior inherent balance, the Chevrolet six-cylinder engine delivers its power freely and easily throughout the entire speed range—delightfully free from annoying vibration and rumble. Combined with this remarkable six-cylinder smoothness are equally remarkable speed, power and acceleration—and an economy of better than twenty miles to the gallon.

In addition to such sensational performance, the Chevrolet Six offers the outstanding advantages of Bodies by Fisher. And no car ever provided a more impressive array of modern convenience features—adjustable driver's seat and VV one-piece windshield in closed models, easy action clutch and gear-shift, ball bearing steering, and instrument panel complete even to theft-proof Electrolock and electric motor temperature indicator! Come in! Learn by comparison and a ride why hundreds of thousands of careful buyers have already chosen the Chevrolet Six.

115 YARDS IN JUNE'S NEW GOWN

ONE hundred and fifteen yards of costly material enough to make evening gowns for a forty-five modern women were used in June Collyer's rose petal party dress costume typical of the mode of 1830 for her latest picture The costume was made in 214 hours, considered a record for elaborate costume making

The dress contains silk shaded in chiffon net and taffeta The large crinoline stiffed skirt resembles an inverted rose Overlapping petals gradually increase in size and color down the dress Each petal is made of chiffon over taffeta with frilled tulle edges Under the petals is a pink taffeta skirt lined with Indian muslin Three taffeta and lace petticoats one crinoline skirt and lace pantalettes complete the outfit

Thirty-four and a half yards of chiffon, nine yards of silk forty-one and a half yards of net eighteen yards of taffeta and twelve of muslin were required

GRANDMAS MANNEQUINS IN SHOPS

Much Better Fitted To Show Off Dresses for Older, Larger Women

PARIS—Mannequins in the smart French dressmaking establishments are not always the sweet young things one always imagined them to be Very often one-half of the number are gray haired mamas, or even grandmammas who are certainly not as young as they used to be but by some method or another have managed to keep their useful forms

"These women of a certain age" says Madame Madeleine one of Paris smartest designers "are much better fitted to show off dresses to be worn by the older and larger woman It is pure folly to believe they can imagine themselves in frocks meant for slender young models

"Youth beauty and slenderness are no longer the essential qualities of a mannequin Grace she ought to possess or else she must acquire it The ability to present a frock to the best advantages can only be acquired after months of study of beautiful attitudes except in the case of a few rare stars who seem born to the trade which I assure you is by no means an easy one"

Madame Madeleine goes on to say that the life of the mannequin in a large [illegible] is not all roses Lured by the anticipated pleasure of wearing lovely gowns [illegible] classes [illegible] apply to the fashion houses of the [illegible] and the Champs Elysees Many of the would-be models were formerly [illegible] circles and imagine that [illegible] a model has to do is [illegible] lovely robes forgetting that there is another side of the picture however [illegible] model has to spend long and weary hours trying on dresses when they are created or retouched

To many little Parisiennes and country girls the salon of the [illegible] dressmaker with soft [illegible] and low lights and on the [illegible] of the season's openings, the [illegible] champagne and crowds of [illegible] people Tales are told of [illegible] marriages among the mannequins who have become important [illegible] of society at home or abroad [illegible] to mention others who [illegible] a lamentable end, and their number is legion

INFORMATION

Warning to the Merchants of Marion, Ohio.

You are being asked to support various promoted (so called labor journals and time tables) even to complete fakes that have no legitimate labor connection. These journals have no circulation and your money is thrown away when you hand it to those who promote same.
The Marion Central Labor Union desires to discontinue the demoralization and antagonism created by these abuses. Call our publicity committee and we will investigate these so called labor committees. Get in touch with the Secretary of your Merchant's Association for the truth on this subject.

PATHFINDER IS OFF TO ETERNAL CITY

Transatlantic Craft Forced To Land in Spain for Lack of Fuel

above the ocean and that the Pathfinder, instead of blazing a new route for itself, had followed this aerial thoroughfare from the beginning of the flight to the end.

Need Rest, Gasoline

Williams brought the plane to a perfect landing at the Albericia field and an immediate examination of the Pathfinder and its Wright Whirlwind motor revealed it had sustained little damage during the perilous flight. Were it not for their need of rest and the difficulty of obtaining a large supply of gasoline Williams and Yancey would have taken off immediately for their final objective.

As things stood they decided to proceed to Santander by automobile and after a welcome by the governor of Santander province to spend the night at the Royal hotel.

Refreshed after a night of unbroken sleep Williams gave to International News Service today a graphic description of the eventful flight. He revealed that in spite of his years of flying experience he became almost violently sick during the flight. When the plane landed at Albericia, he was immediately given medical attention but his trouble proved not to be of a serious nature.

Fly at 12,000 Feet

"I was at the control of the Pathfinder when we hopped from Old Orchard," Williams said. "After five hours of piloting I had a bad attack of stomach ache and had to hand the controls over to Yancey.

"After that we alternated at the controls every five hours. It happened that I was at the controls again when we sighted land and decided to bring the plane down at the Albericia field.

"It was necessary to fly at a great altitude during most of the flight owing to dense cloud formations. In mid Atlantic we flew at a height of 12,000 feet and our lowest altitude during the flight was 50 feet when we swooped down over the Spanish coast.

"We were favored by a tail wind all the way across but visibility was exceedingly poor owing to the dense fog.

Three Bad Storms

The Pathfinder, Williams stated, encountered three bad patches of weather but the plane weathered the storms well and came through with small damage.

"We hit three bad storms during the night," the fliers continued. "One of them—about midnight—was so violent that the wind ripped the metal cover off our gasoline tank. We knew something was wrong but didn't find out what it was until we landed.

"We approached the Spanish coast by way of Cape Ortegal and from that point followed the coast line. As we approached Comillas we recognized the spot where the Yellow Bird had landed and although our gasoline supply was running dangerously low we were determined at least to beat our French rivals even though it was obviously impossible for us to reach our goal.

Dizzy As He Alights

"We managed to fly 25 miles further in an easterly direction before lack of fuel forced us to land. We flew over Albericia field several times looking for a suitable landing place, and a number of children on the field spotted us. They lit a bonfire which guided us to a safe landing.

"The Pathfinder almost overturned when the wheels struck a soft mound of earth, and in trying to avoid other mounds I was forced to swerve the plane violently. We finally came to rest with the nose of the Pathfinder pointing toward America instead of Rome.

"I was very dizzy when I got out of the plane, but quickly recovered after medical attention.

Where Are We?

Williams revealed that after the landing they were forced to ask inhabitants whether they had landed in France or in Spain. When attaches of the field and nearby residents discovered that another transatlantic plane had dropped in their midst the fliers were given a rousing reception, and after the Pathfinder had been wheeled to a sheltered spot they were taken to Santander to be formally received by the governor.

"We are very weary and were unable to make Rome in one jump," Yancey said, "but in all events this was a good place to land and at least we have the satisfaction of having flown the ocean successfully against great handicaps."

Yancey said that he never saw the sea except for two hours during the entire flight, and that no ships were sighted on the journey. He explained that the heavy fuel consumption was due to the necessity of climbing to such a high altitude to escape the thick blanket of fog.

Eat Little on Flight

The fliers declared they made little use of their luxurious larder of food, only nibbling at a few bars of chocolate and drinking the contents of one thermos bottle filled with hot coffee.

"We were too busy to think about eating," Williams said.

Neither Williams nor Yancey was unduly fatigued by the long journey but both slept soundly last night and were in splendid physical condition when they arose this morning.

The airmen recalled that their last minute decision to dump 60 gallons of fuel before the takeoff at Old Orchard contributed to their failure to reach Rome. While passing the Azores they said a checkup of the fuel supply revealed it would be hopeless to attempt to reach Rome and as a second choice they decided to aim for Madrid if possible.

Given Lavish Welcome

When they reached the Spanish coast however they perceived they could not remain in the air much longer and immediately began the search for a suitable landing place. When the gallant plane came to earth it was found she had less than three quarters of a gallon of gasoline in her capacious tank.

The people of Santander duplicated the lavish welcome bestowed upon the crew of the Yellow Bird a few weeks ago in making Williams and Yancey feel at home in this strange land. The Maritime club and various aeronautical societies feted the fliers before they retired last night. And thousands of persons greeted them with a torrent of huzzas when they appeared on the streets.

Send Congratulations

King Alfonso of Spain and Gen. Primo De Rivera, the Spanish dictator, sent their congratulations over the successful termination of the flight. A message was also received from Maj. Ramon Franco and his companions of the hydroplane Numancia forced down off the Azores in an attempted east to west transatlantic crossing.

During the course of his interview with International News Service today Williams held in his hand the mascot he had kept near him through the entire journey—a lipstick used by his wife a few minutes before the take off.

JOHN WILLYS SELLS COMPANY HOLDINGS

Deal Said To Involve $20,000,000, Motor Magnate To Get U. S. Post

NEW YORK, July 10—John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland Co. of Toledo, O., has sold his holdings in the company to a group of capitalists headed by C. O. Miniger and George M. Jones of Toledo, it was learned today. The deal is said to have involved more than $20,000,000.

Willys according to reliable reports in Washington is slated to be named United States ambassador to either Spain or Japan. There is also a possibility that he will get one of the South American posts.

Miniger and Jones have been identified with the Willys-Overland Co. for a number of years and both have been on the board of directors. Miniger is also president of the Electric Autolite Co. of Toledo.

Will Examine Body of Dead U. S. Army Officer

COLUMBUS, July 10—A post mortem examination of the body of Staff Sergeant John B. Hardy, who died in Fort Hayes army hospital after being found unconscious in a local hotel room is to be made here today.

Hardy, a sergeant in the medical corps, had been missing for several days. He had been associated with the army for 13 years and was a native of Kentucky.

German Youth Is Drowned

CINCINNATI, July 10—The treacherous Miami river claimed another victim yesterday, this time a 19-year-old German youth, who was visiting relatives here.

He was drowned when his canoe capsized.

The drowned youth was Adolph Wallenstein, Ossermich, Germany, who had gone canoeing with Harry Mingrish, 10. The latter narrowly escaped the fate which overtook Wallenstein.

The current in the Miami river is unusually swift now, following the heavy rains.

The officiating priests at the ceremony were the Rev. Francis Hechlerman, Detroit; the Rev. Francis Murray, New Haven, and the Rev. Joseph Valembreux, Waterbury, Conn.

A vested choir, a string orchestra and two operatic singers provided the music during the ceremony.

The bride is the youngest daughter of the showman and financier.

Mingling with guests on the flower-bedecked lawn at the wedding reception were a score of private detectives to guard valuable wedding presents and protect the jewelry worn by the fashionables present.

COOPER AT REVIEW

Governor to Inspect O. N. G. at Camp Perry Today

CAMP PERRY, July 10—Gov. Myers Y. Cooper will make his first inspection of troops today when he reviews the 73rd brigade and 112th medical regiment at summer camp of the Ohio National Guard here.

Brig. Gen. L. S. Conelly and his staff planned a big demonstration for the governor. An athletic program was to follow the review.

Medical headquarters at the camp reported that the guardsmen are in uniformly good health, and that only a few minor ailments have been treated thus far.

Friday, July 19 has been set as the day for the championship track and field meet.

Eight Overcome While Fighting Store Flames

MASSILLON, July 10—Fire that damaged the economy shoe store here to the extent of several thousand dollars during the night resulted in Fire Chief Edward Hunsinger, four firemen and three volunteers being overcome by smoke. The chief and four others were revived at the scene of the fire and continued to fight the blaze but the other three were taken to a hospital.

FALL FATAL TO WOMAN

CINCINNATI, July 10—Mrs. Rebecca Lee, 98, died here today from injuries which she suffered when she fell from the second story of her home. The injury at first was believed to be only a scalp wound but an examination proved it to be a fractured skull.

LONDON, O., July 10—Oscar Lyons, a blind man, is in county jail here today serving out a $100 liquor fine which was imposed in probate court here by Judge Mary C. Clark.

Lyons admitted possession of liquor. He had been in court previously on another liquor charge, but was dismissed because of his blindness and upon his promise to leave liquor alone. He was arrested the second time by State Prohibition Agent V. D. Ward.

COMMISSION ON WAR TRAIL IS APPOINTED

Will Lay Out New Historical Route from Toledo to Cincinnati

COLUMBUS, July 10—Members of the Ohio Revolutionary War Trails commission were announced today by Gov. Myers Y. Cooper. They include: Senator Miles S. Kuhns, Dayton; A. D. Hosterman, Springfield, member of the Clark County Historical society; Mrs. Walter F. Toby, Hamilton, state regent, Daughters of the American Revolution; J. F. Rutledge, Kenton; Oswald K. Reames, Zanesville, Republican central committeeman; Frederick W. Hinkle, Cincinnati; G. B. Fulton, North Baltimore, and the director and secretary of the Ohio Archaeological & Historical society.

Senator Kuhns is the author of the measure enacted at the last session of the Ohio legislature authorizing appointment of this commission. The solons appropriated $50,000 to defray expenses to be incurred by the commission which is empowered to designate the route for the Revolutionary Memorial trail, to run from near Toledo to Cincinnati.

It is proposed that the route pass through as many of Ohio's historical states associated with the Revolutionary war and the War of 1812 as is consistent with a "fairly direct" route and to include where feasible lines of march followed by American, British and Indian expeditions of those periods.

Stone markers, bronze tablets, monuments and statues are to be placed along the route. Effort also will be made to make the route include points of archaeological, geological and scenic interest.

ENTIRE NATION IS SMOTHERED BY HEAT

Many Prostrations and Number of Deaths Reported; 110 Degrees at Phoenix

NEW YORK, July 10—The nation sizzled again today under a smothering blanket of heat.

Many prostrations and a number of deaths were reported. In New York and vicinity 10 deaths directly and indirectly attributed to the suffocating weather were recorded. Four died from heat, two were killed by falls from windows while trying to keep comfortable and four were drowned.

The mercury shot up pretty high in some places in the last 24 hours.

Phoenix, Ariz., was the torrid spot, a high temperature of 110 having been recorded.

Showers are promised along the eastern seaboard which may bring about some relief.

France Not To Arrest Envoy Carrying Drugs

PARIS, July 10—Although cocaine and heroin valued at $25,000 were found in the baggage of the Afghanistan minister to France he will not be prosecuted by the French government, it was revealed by the foreign office this afternoon.

A foreign office spokesman said there was no intention of prosecuting the diplomat because of the narcotics found in his luggage by French customs officials.

BUDGET JUMPS

AKRON, July 10—More than $4,526,000 will be required to operate Akron's public schools next year, according to a tentative budget submitted to the board of education. Teachers' salaries will be more than $2,878,000. The proposed budget is $774,379 higher than that of last year.

2 HURT IN ACCIDENT

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 10—Julian Eltinge, famous stage impersonator of women, and Lenore Conova, screen actress, were injured here today when their automobile collided with another car. Eltinge received a three-inch scalp laceration. Miss Conova was slightly injured. Two other occupants of the car were hurt.

SURVIVES 22,000 VOLTS

AKRON, July 10—Delmar Bower, 17, is in the City hospital after surviving contact with a wire carrying 22,000 volts of electricity. Bower touched the wire while working on a pile driver. He was burned on the right hand and arm and right foot. His condition was reported good today.

AMBITION OF YOUTH PUTS HIM IN JAIL

Hires Another To Take Physical Exam for Naval Academy Entrance

WASHINGTON, July 10—The burning ambition of Henry Sherwin Rupp, 19, of Long Beach, Calif., to be a naval officer, landed him in the custody of the police today while police and naval authorities puzzled over what to do in his case.

With young Rupp at a police station was Paul Schooler, also 19, whom the California youth is alleged to have hired to substitute for him in taking the severe physical examination at Annapolis.

Rupp won his academy designation from the California naval reserve and passed the intelligence test with a high mark. He got by with everything physical too, except it was found he was color blind. This automatically barred him but he was more disappointed than discouraged.

According to the police and academy authorities the resourceful Californian then came to Washington, went to an employment agency and hired young Schooler for $15 to substitute for him in a reexamination. Schooler passed with flying colors which aroused the suspicions of academy authorities. They could not understand how a boy could be color blind one day and not the next. Under pressure Schooler confessed to the hoax, according to the authorities. A detective sergeant arrested Rupp while he was waiting for Schooler to return from Annapolis.

The authorities are puzzled as to what procedure to take. Both youths are technically held for investigation.

LEAPS FROM BRIDGE

CLEVELAND, July 10—Leaving behind a note saying he had been a puppet of fate and had decided to end his life, a man identified by papers as H. M. Bailey, a magazine salesman, leaped to his death from the Lorain avenue bridge early today. Police were endeavoring to recover the body from the swollen rocky river. The man drove to the bridge in his car.

INDI-GESTION

ACIDINE never fails to banish and keep it away.

This remarkable new discovery really banishes, not merely relieves, indigestion, acidosis, gassiness, sour stomach, sick headache and stomach, chronic constipation, head colds and acid rheums. It alkalizes, balances excess acid, keeps the whole digestive system sweet and clean.

ACIDINE is the only perfect, modern, antacid which is combined with Japanese, a powerful starch digestant—it digests 900 times its own weight of pure potato starch in 30 minutes. Your stomach deserves protection. ACIDINE gives it.

A mild and safe digestant, antacid and corrective beyond compare. Soothing to the stomach and intestinal membranes. Slightly laxative but not excessively so. A really perfect medicine for mother, father, children and babies. Used and recommended by physicians everywhere. Money back guarantee. At all druggists, or write Health Laboratories, Inc., Dept. 25, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"You won't mind me asking? It's pretty," she stammered— pretty personal I'm afraid It's about your going back there today Was it—very hard, Tabor?"

"You mean painful? In a way yes rather When a life as deeply bedded in one spot as mine was gets torn up by its roots * * *"

"I know Just seeing your home again must have been hell" Jennifer quite simply considered "But I wasn't thinking about only that * * *"

"What you have in mind is something I myself can't understand" Tabor confessed "It wasn't easy but it was more uncomfortable than downright distressing I would not have believed I could feel so little real pain"

"I guess I understand" Jennifer took her hand away and got up. "There's nothing so dead as a love that's been killed—I know! But you see I don't know you very well Tabby I don't expect I ever will * * *

"I dare say it must sound silly to you" a stumbling tongue pursued "but that's just what has been bothering me ever since your telegram You didn't say where you were going or what you were going to do so I couldn't help guessing I thought maybe you * * *

"Oh I don't know! I was just afraid maybe something would happen and you couldn't come back and it came over me all of a sudden I wouldn't know what to do without you"

"Jenny!" Tabor remonstrated "Do you realize it's after 1 o'clock already You must be tired out"

"Oh I know what I'm saying!" The girl rounded on him in shy challenge "You don't appreciate what you've made yourself mean to me Tabby I don't myself hardly It's all been so strange with us so queer and—romantic You've got so much influence over me already——"

"Oh come now!"

"But you have How do you know what's been going on inside me all this while? Being with you has made me see things so differently I don't feel like the same woman—I'm not the same woman Tabby I'm changed in a way I can't describe

"But it's a terribly real way, and you're responsible—it's your influence did it You see I'd never known anybody like you before"

Impulsively she moved a step nearer "You're so thoughtful and generous and—and sweet—I don't know how else to put it. Tabby—you make me want to be good"

Misted eyes and tremulous lips in a face softly incarnadined implored his charity "I suppose I must sound like a hysterical little fool all the same I mean every word I say, it's all true"

"Nothing of the sort" Tabor with a gesture of paternal indulgence captured those fluttering hands. "But you do sound like a tired-out girl What you really want is a night's sleep"

"I don't" Jennifer all but violently contradicted "I just want you to understand and can't seem to think how to make you * * *"

Her words failed as if for want of breath, and for a moment Tabor saw in some dismay she was swaying toward him But then in a jiffy she reined herself up with a hard curb

"Forgive me Tabby I didn't mean to emote all over the place Only * * * Well! I expect you're right I am a bit overwrought — I have been worrying such a lot today Now" she entreated with her flickering smile "smack me if you think that's what I need and send me to bed"

A wag of a dense head denied that The undercurrent of this sudden shift to levity was hardly to be ignored

But Tabor was either stupid or stubborn—or perhaps afraid to be intelligent And he was disturbed as well by having to resist an impulse—one of purely paternal feeling as he reckoned—to take the girl into his arms and comfort her That sort of thing would never do was too open to misconstruction

"Good night then" he said—and avoided seeing her "We'll both be better I suspect for a good sleep Good night Jenny"

The "Good night Tabby" that answered had a curiously abashed and at the same time almost mutinous pitch The girl swung away with a movement so sharp it seemed impatient The dusk that lurked beyond the light of the shaded lamp blurred out all but the gracious stir her body made

"Oh! I almost forgot * * *"

Tabor slightly started Jennifer was looking back from her bedchamber door

"A man from Dreicer's was asking for you today He had a valuable package he said to deliver and wouldn't leave it unless somebody responsible signed for it I told him to come back tomorrow"

"Why didn't you sign for it" Tabor inquired "As Mrs Drew * *"

"I didn't have the nerve" Jennifer consciously laughed "and that's the truth I can't seem to get accustomed to being missused I thought I would after a while but it's funny the longer this goes on the more self conscious somehow it makes me feel"

"You'll get used to it" Tabor absently mumbled He was wondering if she had been moved to speculation if she had been moved to speculate on the nature of that undelivered parcel for Tabor Drew from a Fifth av jeweler of the first rank

Hardly reasonable to credit her with such lack of curiosity and Christmas the day after tomorrow * *

"And my father was here this afternoon"

"Was he?" Tabor politely pronounced

"Yes * * * !"

It was borne in upon Tabor that Jennifer was putting a question more than imparting an item of neighborly news He blinked across the glow of lamplight to find that the girl had drawn back from the door

"He said he was calling by appointment and seemed very cross about not finding you here Tabor what does he want of you"

"I'm afraid" Tabor evaded with the most innocent face he could muster "you'll have to ask him"

"Because I won't have him sponging on you—please Tabor! Promise not to lend him money simply because——"

"Yes!"

"Oh well! Because he always was a shameless cadger and thinks you've got money He'd always rather borrow than work"

Tabor took a half sigh of relief That pretentious old blackguard then had communicated nothing of his mind to Jennifer

"I'll do my best to discourage him Jenny"

"Tabor * * * you don't suppose he's wise do you?"

(Confound the girl Why wouldn't she get along to bed)

"I imagine" Tabor contrived to say with a mild chuckle "he's got very little to learn"

"I mean about us—about our not being married"

"Why? Has he been asking pointed questions?"

"That's just what's puzzling me he hasn't. It isn't like him not to be nosy He hadn't said another word since that night about when and where we got married And the way he stuck around here this afternoon and piled on the agony about a father's love that never had a real show before, and kept smiling down his nose any fool could have told he thought he was being awful damn smart about something or other Tabor * * *"

An arresting hand fell upon his sleeve a suppliant countenance sought his "If he ever tried anything rotten on you because of me—

"There!"—Tabor patiently patted the detaining hand—"that's a wild fear surely"

"I don't think I could stand it," the girl passionately cried "You've done enough for me as it is, more than I ever deserved"

"But I am sure you are alarming yourself needlessly"

"I'm not! He's capable of anything See here Tabor"—Jennifer got herself in hand again "I won't have you paying him hush money on my account If I find out you're doing that I—I won't be able to stay here any longer"

"That's all you needed to say to make me promise faithfully to respect your wishes Jenny"

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M LEWIS

TODAY was Wednesday and it was warm and hammy and kinda wet yet. When I had let Jubilee down he didn't have any water only mud for his bussel to land in But he had just as soon have mud as water And then I got into my britches and went down and got the milk pail and went out to see how the dumme brutes were I had to feed them last night when I got them home from the pasture because yesterday the pasture was under water and a cow isn't a submarine

When I had got them milked and had tooken the milk in the house the bunch was mostly in the barn and Youniss and Maggie and Bellie were in the house Their mothers had told them they might take off their shoes and stockings and come with us but to be careful where they waded because since prohibition there is a lot of glass around I should think they would have sens enough to ast us if they could go along with us and not ast their mother Anybody would think we don't have anything to do with who goes along with us Women aren't so very brite By the time I had fed my face and the girls had said they weren't hungry and had been coaxed to just eat a little bit and had et almost everything there was in the house the cows had finished theirs and we let them out As we went out the road Jubilee met a strange cat that spat in his face and he barked and started after it to see if it would run and it turned around and its tail swole up and away it went down the middle of the road which was all there was out of water Jubilee was so glad to find a cat that he could chase that he took out after it like a cyclone and barking his head off and I was glad to think what a good time he was having Then when they had turned the first corner his barking turned to a ki yi ing that was louder than his bark had been, and here he came back again and a cat right on his tail He went through the water in the ditch to get into our yard, and the cat wouldn't go in the water so he was all right It wasn't the same cat he had started off after If he hadn't switched cats he would have been all right. Why should a dog that has found a cat that will run away from him change to another cat? They certainly ain't brite

When we got out to where the culvert is under the road Bellie stepped off where the water was about 20 feet deep It was a good thing it was her because Youniss and Maggie can't swim It would of been funny if she had got swept away and drownded in the top of a tree We gave Maggie and Youniss who had fell down and got wet all over a lesson in swimming where there won't be any more water than a rabbit in a few days They are not very good learners

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

Phil Veritzen Glibly Offers Explanation

PHILIP VERITZEN'S poise is shock proof and his manner was perfect as ignoring for the moment the entrance of Lilith and Dicky he rose from his chair and picked up the roses scattered from the broken bowl

"I never can forgive myself Mrs Graham" he said as he laid the roses upon the table "It is punishment for bringing the bowl over to this table" He turned and included the others in his apology "But I am quite mad about the glass and this was an unusual specimen I thought I wanted to examine it at closer quarters Do tell me where you found it Of course I shall not rest until I find something as nearly like it as possible"

Even through my lively dismay my laughter muscles threatened rebellion If only he had put forward any other explanation of the little scene upon which Dicky and I had stumbled! I knew that he had not once glanced at the bowl of roses he had set upon the table with the gallant little speech that "a beautiful woman should always have roses near here"

"Don't be so desolated Veritzen" Dicky's voice held a distinct sneer although he was smiling broadly "It's probably one of the things Madge is always picking up in the five and ten She haunts that emporium for sales a thrifty soul as well as an artistic one and she avers she finds simply ravishing things there"

Lilith's Moment

"Madge dear I wouldn't have such a brute for a husband" Lilith rushed forward playing up — to which I asked the question even as she stooped to the fragments upon the floor "It's that lovely Venetian thing that translucent green I admired it so much tonight I don't wonder you're upset Mr Veritzen But I'll help you find something like it I know the shops pretty well But Madge have you seen my bag? I left it in here I am sure and when I missed it I made Dicky bring me over here to let me in with his key I had no idea you people were here or I wouldn't have dragged him away They're holding the game for him but I'm hunting this bag at my table Oh there's my bag!"

With a clever affection of a girlish laugh she brought up an exquisite little evening bag from the depths of an overstuffed chair I was sure that she had left it there for an excuse to bring Dicky back to the apartment and arouse my jealousy Then my absence with Philip Veritzen had given her an opportunity she welcomed avidly

"Coming back with me Dicky now that you've found your property?" Dicky was still smiling but his eyes were stormy "They'll be raging for us in a minute"

"No run along that's a dear" she said with an easy air that infuriated me "I'll reconstruct this bowl so that I'll have a good idea of it when I go shopping for Mr Veritzen"

Dicky Grows Sarcastic

She looked up at the great producer with a girlish appeal which I conceded was most effective and he smiled down at her

"I shan't be needed here any longer then" he said easily "I'll go back with you Graham Thank you so much Mrs Graham for letting me unload my troubles upon you Mrs Underwood assured me you would see a way out and I shall tell her she is indeed a prophet"

"Oh Madge is a mental first aid kit" my husband laughed and I wondered if Lilith and Philip Veritzen caught the venom in his voice that I knew was there "Don't spend too much time reconstructing that bowl Lilie You'll find its fellows—any number of them I tell you—at the five and ten"

"You are pleased to be facetious Graham" Mr Veritzen said and I saw the little sardonic grin on his hard face when the other man had turned stiffly toward the door The great theatrical producer a noted connoisseur of pottery and glass, could not realize that his neglect to notice the bowl which had been almost obscured by the roses had led him into a ridiculous error For the bowl had come from the five and ten cent store where I often find receptacles for flowers which just suit my fancies in color But I would have given much to know whether Dicky was feeling or whether he really had recognized the bowl's real value? And was Lilith Fairfax ignorant of glass as she appeared while fitting the broken pieces of the bowl together?

"When a job depends on new-looking clothes"

"Perhaps other girls would like this hint from a real life story . Since coming to Hollywood as one of many 'extra' girls, I have had to make every penny count My clothes are my most precious possessions! So every night I go over my wardrobe, washing each thing that is a bit wilted in Lux.

"Sometimes I have had to save on breakfasts—but never on Lux—that is an essential . Again and again I've been complimented on my lovely new clothes And I've gotten any number of jobs, I know, because my clothes look nice—thanks to Lux"

SHIRLEY DORMAN,
Hollywood, Cal

Every great Movie Studio uses Lux!

Not only "extras" but stars—all the great movie studios, with million dollar wardrobes to care for, use Lux! They find by scientific tests that pretty clothes, whether of sheer or sturdier materials—can actually be kept new looking twice as long with Lux! "For dollars and cents' reasons" they say, "we don't dare risk using anything but Lux"

PRESENT PROGRAM

Montgomery Grange To Entertain Mt. Olive Group at Next Meeting

Mrs. Mildred Snachell presided for the lecture hour at the meeting of members of Montgomery grange, No 3336 last night at the grange hall at DeCliff. Announcement was made of the next meeting to be held July 23, at which time members of the Mt. Olive grange will be entertained as guests and will present the program.

The progeam hour opened with a reading by Mrs. Snachell and a violin solo by Woodrow Thorpe. Miss Marjorie Deal contributed a reading and cookie recipes were given by Mrs. Snachell. The program hour concluded with a song, "America the Beautiful," by the grange members.

ON PROGRAM HERE

DR. DAVID P. VAUGHAN

NOTED MINISTER TO GIVE ADDRESS

Dr. Vaughan One of Leaders in Local Chautauqua Program

Dr David D. Vaughan will address local Chautauqua patrons on "The Challenge of the New Day," Wednesday night, July 24, at 7:45 o'clock, according to the Chautauqua program recently issued.

Dr Vaughan has taken the complex problems of the day as the basis of his authoritative discussions. He knows both books and men and has widely traveled.

For two years he was pastor in the parish "Back of the Stock Yards"—the Upton Sinclair "Jungle District." Later, for five years, he served as pastor of the Halstead Institutional church, where he did work that attracted national attention.

He has also held a long pastorate in a wealthy church, ministering to an exclusive, suburban congregation. At the present time he is professor of social service in Boston university.

His lecture will be in the nature of a forum address, and he will be glad to answer questions following his lecture.

A meeting of the Marion Chautauqua organization was held yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. The duties of the various committees and the work of each in making the Chautauqua successful, was pointed out.

ARRANGE FUNERAL FOR RICHARD BELL

Rites for Richwood High School Student To Be Held Thursday

RICHWOOD, July 10—Funeral services for Richard Bell, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fay Bell, residing southwest of here, who was drowned while swimming in a quarry near here, will be held at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the Bethlehem church. Pastors in charge of the services will be the Rev. B. F. McKinnon, of the M. P. church, the Rev. Robert Price, of the Baptist church and the Rev. Charles Cornbrook, of the Presbyterian church. Interment will be made in the church cemetery.

The body of the young man was found by Diver Todd Babbitt, of Toledo, beneath a log in about 26 feet of water and about 60 feet from the shore. It is believed he was seized with cramps upon diving into the water.

The youth was a member of the 4-H club of Union county and accredited himself with honors in club contests in the county and state. He also won honors in scholastic activities in the county and district and took second honors in plane geometry in the state contest. He would have been a junior in the Richwood high school next year and was especially interested in agricultural pursuits. He also received honors in football.

The body was removed to the home this afternoon from the undertaking parlors of Lloyd Winter & Sons, Richwood.

Grand Opera Music

COLUMBIA SYSTEM FEATURE

In Thursday Program

BY MAC L. ROY

GRAND opera selections will be featured in the program that the Voice of Columbia is offering at 9 o'clock Thursday night in its broadcast over the Columbia system.

The first of these will be an aria from Mozart's "Don Giovanni," to be sung by soprano and baritone with orchestra, and this will be followed by the Minuet and Gavotte from Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci" and an aria from Bizet's "Le Roi d'Ys," the latter to be sung by Willard Amison.

Other classical numbers will include Weber's "Invitation to the Dance," Schubert's "Erl King," to be sung by Helen Oelheim, and Massenet's "Vision Fugitive," while a lighter touch will be contributed to such pieces as Forsyth's "Tell Me Not of a Lovely Lass," sung by a mixed quartet, and an orchestral arrangement of Friml's "Russian Peasant Dance."

In addition, several dance tunes will enliven the hour, among them "Kewpie," "Sunshine and Roses" and "I'll Get By."

• • •

NEW SERIES TO OPEN OVER WEAF

FAMOUS trials of history, whose outcome swayed the destiny of nations, will be recreated for radio listeners in a unique series of broadcasts, "Historic Trials," over the WEAF network at 8:30 o'clock each Thursday night.

The series opens Thursday night with the trial of Socrates, father of western thought and teacher of Plato, who was condemned to drink the fatal cup of hemlock for his blasphemy in daring to challenge the existence of pagan gods.

As far as scholarly research permits, dramatic dialogue from actual testimony in the trial will be reproduced in the opening and succeeding broadcasts.

• • •

The trial of Socrates will be followed by those of Joan of Arc, Mary, Queen of Scots, Sir Walter Raleigh and others, including a trial for witchcraft, one from the middle ages in which an animal's life was at stake, and that of the famous burglar, Charles Peace.

• • •

HOUR WILL REVIEW POPULAR ENTERTAINERS

A RADIO review of well-known microphone entertainers will be staged as the National Broadcasting and Concert Bureau hour over the WEAF network at 9:30 o'clock Thursday night.

Familiar favorites to be heard include Reva Giles, soprano, Richard Maxwell, tenor, Mildred Hunt, contralto, the Piano Twins and Howard Phillips, tenor, Phil Napoleon, trumpeter, and a dance orchestra.

• • •

ORIENTAL THEMES IN CONCERT

THE Russian and Celtic conceptions of oriental music, as reflected in themes by Rimsky Korsakoff and Victor Herbert, will be divulged to listeners during the Maxwell House concert which Rosario Bourdon and his orchestra will broadcast over the WJZ network at 8:30 o'clock Thursday night.

The More—The Better

The population of the United States increases one every twenty-two and a half seconds, 160 new Americans every hour of the day, 1,400,000 every year.

And the American standard of living keeps pace with the American standard of growth. We built one new single dwelling every 55 seconds last year, to say nothing of all the apartments built and the remodeling of hundreds of thousands of old houses.

The more of us there are, the better we live, and much thanks is due the savings and loan plan of thrift.

LOCAL MAN IN CITY HIT BY EARTHQUAKE

Prettyman One of Visiting Elks Shaken Up in Los Angeles

R J Prettyman president of the Marion city council and past exalted ruler of Marion Lodge of Elks will be able to tell his friends at home how it feels to pass through an earthquake when he returns from Los Angeles where he is attending the Elks grand lodge meeting this week

A tremblor of no small violence shook Los Angeles Monday giving the several hundred Elks at the convention an exciting experience For the large majority of the visitors it was their first experience with an earthquake, according to newspaper reports

The visiting lodge representatives were thrown into a near panic when the hotels in which they were stopping began to sway and furniture slid from one side of the room to the other Most of the guests rushed into hall ways in a frantic effort to find their way outside

The earthquake did no damage although it was reported to be the most severe in Los Angeles since the Santa Barbara tremblor four years ago

Prettyman according to today's press dispatches, was one of several Ohioans named on grand lodge committees

Auto Club Officials Again Call Attention to Change of Location

Headquarters of the Marion Auto club have been moved from the Harding Hotel building to 191 East Center st

This can hardly be classed as a news item for the auto club has been in its present location more than a year

Yet it must be news to some Marionites including some business men according to officials of the club They report that frequently tourists come to the club after having been directed to the former office in the Harding Hotel by local citizens who evidently are not aware of the change made many months ago

This misdirection is certain to leave a bad impression with visitors to the city one of the club officials said today in expressing the hope that there will be no future mistake

Zido Happily Married But Only After Plenty of Trouble

ST CLAIRSVILLE July 10—George Zido 31 is happily married here today but only after experiencing many court hardships.

Zido enlisted in the army in 1918 and while serving in France married a young mademoiselle

The girl refused to return to the United States with Zido

A short time later Zido fell in love with an American girl and married her but without first obtaining a divorce from his French wife

He was arrested and a bigamy charge was lodged against him

He forestalled prosecution however by obtaining a divorce from the French woman

Then he remarried his second wife

YOUTH, 18, DROWNS NEAR RIDGEWAY

Milan Wilgus Believed To Have Been Stricken with Cramps While Swimming

RIDGEWAY July 10—Milan Wilgus 18 son of Mr and Mrs Roy Wilgus residing six miles southwest of here drowned while swimming in a large pond in a gravel pit on the Mrs Bertha Terrill farm two miles northwest of here Tuesday morning. His body was recovered about [illegible] o'clock yesterday afternoon by a searching party headed by Logan County Recorder R A Van Vleet of Bellefontaine by the use of a hooked pole Funeral services for the young man will be held Thursday

Wilgus in company with his cousin Bernard Wickersham had just started to swim across the pond which is about 60 feet across Water in the pond which is fed by springs is quite cold and it is believed he was stricken with cramps Wickersham was not aware of his cousin's plight until he reached the opposite side of the pond and immediately ran to a farmhouse to summon help

A number of young men from Rushsylvania and Ridgeway attempted to dive for the body but were unable to stay in the water any length of time because of the coldness

Wilgus is survived by his parents one sister Virginia and two brothers Herbert and Donald

STRIKE THREATENED BY 45,000 WORKERS

Walkout Voted in Sympathy with New Orleans Street Car Employes

ing the carmen's union it was announced

No time limit was given in the trade unions ultimatum to the car company which previously had refused to deal with the union Officials of the company learning of the latest move by the unions declined to comment

The threatened general strike involving virtually every trade union in New Orleans would place every activity at a standstill here

Meanwhile in the face of the potential walkout United States marshals prepared to swear in 200 special deputies to enforce the federal court injunction to restrain the strikers from interfering with the operation of street cars The order was obtained by bondholders of the company

During rioting last week which also claimed two lives and resulted in injuries to scores of others four cars were damaged and considerable trackage torn up by the strikers and their sympathizers

No concrete proposals for settlement of the strike have been advanced although two government conciliators sent here by the department of labor have conferred with company officials and union officials All concerned have ever expressed the hope they could solve the dispute

In view of the court injunction it was expected that the Public Service company will attempt to begin operation of cars The company is holding a train load of strikebreakers outside the city's limits

It was recalled that the trolleys were run under the guard of U S marshals during the car strike of 1920

HEAR TESTIMONY IN MURDER TRIAL

Crestline Man Faces Crawford County Jury, Take Jurors from Street

BUCYRUS, July 10—After the entire morning session of court and part of the afternoon session had been used in the selection of a jury testimony in the murder trial of William Dukes Crestline slayer got under way shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon

Witnesses to take the stand during yesterday's afternoon's session included Mrs Sallie Hoke the sister of the slain woman Mrs Anna Freeman alleged sweetheart of Dukes who testified that the accused man had made threats upon the life of her sister a number of times before the murder

Felix Hoke, husband of Mrs Sallie Hoke in his testimony upon questioning explained the exact location of the bullet fired by Dukes which caused the death of Mrs Freeman

That Dukes had forced his company on Mrs Freeman and that he had threatened her previous to the shooting was testified to by Reverend Clark Dukes' pastor Rev Arnold another Crestline pastor told of hearing a conversation between Dukes and Reverend Clark in which Dukes threatened the life of Mrs Freeman Coroner Dr [illegible] who examined the body following the death of the victim testified as to the condition of the body and the cause of death

Although the name of Dr Pourick Columbus brain specialist who Saturday examined Dukes relative to his sanity did not appear on the list of defense witnesses yesterday Attorney Kutel stated yesterday that he would be called to testify to the sanity of Dukes some time today Indications are that testimony in the case will be completed today and that Dukes will take the stand in his own behalf some time this afternoon

Some difficulty was encountered in the selection of a jury when after the entire list of 52 veniremen had been exhausted the court bailiff went into the streets to summon talesmen the following jurors were selected

Mrs I G Reid Mrs F C Ickelberry Al Burwell Hazel Weaver Mrs A M Lane Mrs A J White C E McKechen Mrs Ross Black all of Bucyrus Mrs Ella Dickerson Galion Theodore Faie Crestline Rt 1 Carl Bauer Mrs Frank Stephan Galion and J W Bishop Precaution was taken against illness of any juror by the selection of a thirteenth juror who is placed at the outer edge of the regular jury box

The defendant as he sat in court throughout yesterday's session of court appeared tired Behind him heavily armed sat Sheriff George Davenport ready to meet any emergency which might arise throughout the trial Mostly Crestliners of which there were about 60 occupied the spectators seats

Preparing for Winter

WOMEN, are you ever free from the thoughts of "what to wear" as season after season approaches?

Summer is upon us, and many of you are probably just completing or starting your wardrobes for the summer and hot fall months. Many are more than pleased if their wardrobes are complete during an entire summer season.

But now comes the thought—what will you wear this winter? For already buyers are beginning to order their stock of winter styles. Imagine going from one wholesale house to another, conferring with salesman and modistes over the problem of what to sell this winter, with the mercury registering 90.

Furs, velvets, velours. No wonder the buyers are glad to sit on their front porches during their vacations, after they're gone through all this in the midst of the warmest weather of the season.

Masculine Vanity

MEN are just as conceited as women, if anyone has ever stopped to notice the fact.

Two men were talking recently in an uptown drug store and one of them remarked to the other that he was wearing an especially attractive tie. It happened to be purple silk with some brightly colored small design woven in blocks or circles.

Whereas a girl would have looked pleased and accepted the compliment, the man who was honored with the attention smiled rather sheepishly and if he had been a little boy, instead of a grown man, would undoubtedly have said, "Aw, gwan!"

As it was, after a repetition of the statement that the tie really was a knockout, he accepted it blithely and was more than particular after that not to let it drag in an ice cream soda or "coke."

Glorious Fourth

CELEBRATE? Why certainly everybody celebrated Independence day in the United States, although without a doubt not half dozen of the celebrators knew what it was all about.

Several little boys, regular kids who believe in having shacks on the back of the lot, playing Indian and holding martial drill, felt the urge to acknowledge their patriotic debt on the Fourth.

Early in the morning they gathered 'round their shack and began to light firecrackers. As one explained later, they didn't make so much noise, but gee, the smoke.

After the rites of firing the crackers was over, the boys marched into the shack and began to "render," "The Star Spangled Banner" and other patriotic songs of dash and verve. Their boyish voices were all keyed to a high pitch and if the tune wasn't quite what it should have been, it was better than no patriotism at all.

Vacation Joys

JULY brings dreams of a trip to the lakes where fish are so abundant that they die of starvation if not caught. Many a man sighs to think of the time when he can throw work aside and journey to Michigan where bass and perch walk away with the fish poles and sometimes the boat. He reads magazines that teach the tired business man how to cast for bass in the reeds without tangling the line and sometimes he goes the limit by practicing in the local fish bowl. All these things are what father does but mother heaves sighs of relief to think that she can turn the children loose while she rests.

Outside of the children falling in the lake or getting a fish hook caught in their clothes she has a fine time. The kiddies themselves have a great time. They row boats until their muscles are stiff and when they are tired of doing that they can fish off the shore or play in the sand. Each member has a dream of what he or she is going to do when vacation time comes.

Upon returning home the family relates to the neighbor with ambitions of a vacation himself, what a wonderful time they had, the big fish they caught, or the swell bathing beach the lake had. The flat tires, rain storms, and the number of times the children fell and hurt themselves leave their minds, only to be discussed in the family circle. Not for anything in the world would they admit that accidents like that could spoil the vacation they had planned for so long, so when asked they say, "Oh, yes, we had a wonderful time."

Pulling Together

YE Volga boatmen of yore had nothing on our modern trolley car track builders. They chanted and sang in order to "keep in step." Now a bellicose foreman says "pull," and 14 men yank and tug on a stubborn ton of steel in the form of a rail. At each pull, a foot or two is gained, and so are the rails carted into place after being unloaded by cranes.

One can see this demonstrated on West Center st., where the track is now being completed by the construction gang of the C., D. & M. Electric Co., working under J. H. Holtsberry, roadmaster. In a well-timed series of "pulls" the rails are soon laid end to end, where they are securely bolted into place. They are also bolted to steel ties which are later submerged in concrete and overlaid with brick.

Mr. Holtsberry says the average man is capable of "heaving" about 200 pounds dead weight. The average rail is 62 feet in length and weighs about 2,180 pounds. Thus we see that 14 men can split the weight with reasonable ease—perhaps not ease, but at least without straining their entire physical anatomy.

There are 52 rails in the tracks between Oak st. to State st., and from the corner of State and Center sts. north to the railroad tracks, Holtsberry said. These rest on 610 steel ties. When the concrete has been poured, and the brick laid over it the track is good for many years of hard service.

Imitates "King Joe"

BOYS, small boys and large boys, are doing the same tricks today that they did 20 years ago.

A gang of neighborhood boys asked a woman the other day if they could please use the garage on the lot as a starting place for their parachutes.

The parachutes were about the size of a man's handkerchief, and finally the thrill of watching them sail from the building began to grow dimmer.

Then one little boy had the bright idea of doing a parachute landing himself, and needless to say, nearly broke every bone in his body.

Instead of sailing gently down to earth as he had seen it done in the movies, the earth rose up quickly to meet him and the meeting was sudden and shocking.

Using current developed by the cars themselves, a western railroad has found electric refrigeration of dining cars more economical than icing.

ESSEX challenges all to match its Performance Ability ON THE ROAD!

Challenging Variety at no extra cost

COME see at our Color Show the beauty and variety of color which Essex offers at no extra cost. The choice of color is so wide as to offer almost individual distinction.

This original and refreshing beauty is but one of Essex's attractions, for it has proved itself in every part of the world, against all that motordom offers. Essex has received the most spontaneous welcome ever extended a 6-cylinder car. Hosts of owners from every size and price field are turning to Essex the Challenger.

With its open challenge, that excepts no car—

—with its 24% greater power and its performance challenging any car up to 70 miles an hour.

—with its greater beauty, adult-size capacity, riding ease and economy—

—and with its brilliant chassis quality and fine, large bodies—Essex establishes also an outstanding leadership in proven VALUE.

It offers a completeness of fine car equipment formerly identified only with costly cars, and available, when at all, only as "extras," at extra cost on cars of Essex price. In Essex the Challenger—a complete, fine big "Six"—these items are standard.

At no extra cost—these features include: 4 Hydraulic shock absorbers—Starter and electric gauge for fuel and oil on dash—Greater operation economy—Radiator shutters for heat control—Adjustable seats front and rear—Weatherproof doors, rattle-proof windows, silent body construction—All bright parts chromium-plated—saddle lamps—windshield wiper—glare-proof rear view mirror—controls on steering wheel—electrolock—New type double-action 4-wheel brakes uniformly effective in all weather—Patented Super-Six advantages eliminating vibration.

They represent as much as one hundred dollars' worth of additional value, and are another reason for the enormous success which Essex the Challenger has enjoyed from the outset.

FIRST PROTEST

AFTER nearly reaching the three quarter mark on the schedule without a single protest being filed the Marion recreation ball commission today has one 'kick' to settle. The decision of the commission may influence the final standings of one of the local leagues.

• • •

Illegal Player

The initial protest of the season was filed by the Lutherans of the second Sunday School loop charging that United Brethren used an Epworth Senior player in a contest played some time ago. Needless to say, the Lutherans lost the game.

• • •

WILL CHANGE STANDINGS

If the dispute is settled in favor of the Lutherans and close observers of the league say it will, it will mean a three way race for the league title. Lee Street and Asbury at the present time are tied for the leadership and if the Lutherans get a vote of confidence from the commission they will be on an equal rating with the top teams. The dispute will be settled the first Monday in July.

WREATH FOR COOKE

THE wreath of honor in recreation games played this week goes to Cooke, hurler for the Asbury nine of the second Sunday School League. Cooke upset the Lee Street nine in games played Monday night handing them a 7 to 0 drubbing. As a result the two teams are tied for first place in the standings.

New Boxing Gym

As a result of the benefit fight staged Monday night at Eagles hall Marion boxers realized $82.50 to be used in buying equipment for training quarters. The card was staged by all Marion talent but failed to attract anything exciting in the way of attendance. Marion fans do not seem interested in their home town boys.

• • •

BIG FIGHT WOULD DO

If the Eagles are really interested in the development of home talent they could swing a big benefit fight at Crystal Lake park. By big fight the writer means that the principals have advanced out of the ham and egg class. Marion can and will support a good show if given the opportunity.

Stubbornness May Cost Schmeling Small Fortune

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, July 10 — James Joseph Tunney, the man who once permitted himself to know prize fighters, had a very definite mind of his own and the will to impose it upon others. At least in the vulgar matter of money, Dempsey always seemed to know what he wanted and he got it. Tommy Loughran is a man who insists upon doing his thinking personally and the three of them are about as stubborn as a thoroughly vindictive canary bird in comparison with Max Schmeling, who today stands suspended in four states and two foreign territories because his personal antipathy for a discarded manager is stronger than his judgment.

• • • •

SCHMELING cares nothing for the wishes of a boxing commission that not only can keep him out of employment here but also in Massachusetts, Illinois, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, Kansas, the Dominion of Canada and possibly the whole of Europe. He cares nothing for the counsel or the desires of a multi-million dollar corporation like Madison Square Garden and the managers he deigns to recognize have no more standing with him than has the discountenanced Arthur Bulow. In fact much less. He at least is guided in his actions by what he believes Bulow doesn't want.

• • •

THE German will meet Jack Sharkey somewhere—perhaps in Detroit, Windsor, Ont., or in Jersey—with the heavyweight title at stake on or about Sept. 26. This in spite of the fog of uncertainty now pervading the situation, is almost certain to come about. But it will be the other parties concerned who will contrive to have the meeting take place, not Schmeling. He is a man absolutely obsessed by what the French allude to as an idee fixe.

• • •

THE fixation has to do with Herr Bulow and rather than see the latter gain a point Schmeling apparently would lose a fortune. He can be kept out of work indefinitely by the local commission unless he accepts the match for which Bulow signed him, an August date with Phil Scott. Apparently he is willing to waive all immediate [illegible] expect for the [illegible] pleasure of [illegible] Bulow.

• • •

IT IS all very well to talk of Schmeling going back to Germany and doing his boxing there until the Bulow contract expires or the New York commission weakens. The latter has some sort of an agreement with the International Boxing Federation and while Germany is [illegible] to Schmeling, it might have some [illegible] with the parent body. Windsor [illegible] like the spot but Ontario also [illegible] with New York. At that, it would be astounding if, with a chance at a big fight, the whistle blew and Ontario stopped working. Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and other workers however, are all in duty bound to play along with New York.

TOURNAMENT STARTS AFTER RAIN DELAYS OPENING MATCHES

Initial Scores Discarded, Preliminary Play is Cut to 18 Holes

BROOKSIDE COUNTRY CLUB, CANTON, July 10—Delayed by a heavy rain the opening day, the annual Ohio amateur golf tournament got under way here today.

Play was postponed yesterday and all scores thrown out when golfers and a committee representing the Ohio State Amateur Golf association decided the water-soaked course was in no condition for competition.

As a result of the postponement play in the qualifying round was cut from 36 to 18 holes. The first to tee off got away at 8:30 a. m., and the others followed at regular intervals.

Fourteen linksmen succeeded in playing 18 holes while the sun was shining yesterday. They were led by Nelson Bulls, Cincinnati, who went out in 41, six over par, and came home in 36 for a 77.

Ruddy was medalist by four strokes. He played five holes in par going out and had two birdies and six par holes coming in. Dale Holwick, Canton, and Frank Boll, Cleveland, ranked second with 81s.

William Deuschle, Columbus, defending champion, succeeded in playing nine holes, having a 41, six over par when rain interfered. Joe Wells, East Liverpool, twice champion, and Parker Campbell, Toledo, 1926 champion, failed to turn in their scores.

Jack Munro, Zanesville, 1918 champ and the fourth titleholders here seeking Deuschle's crown, tied with Jack Cummins, Cleveland, for the best nine hole score of 38.

Women's Tourney Field Cut to 8

PORTAGE COUNTRY CLUB, AKRON, July 10—The Ohio women's golf tournament narrowed down to eight contestants today, four of whom were to be eliminated before nightfall.

Miss Louise Fordyce, of Youngstown, the overwhelming favorite to capture the women's title and two other former champions, Mrs. Curtis Sohl of Columbus and Mrs. Julian Tyler, Cleveland, survived the first round of championship play.

Miss Fordyce was matched today with Mrs. George Case of Cleveland and they were first to tee off.

Other matches were:

Mrs. L. C. Nelson, Dayton vs. Mrs. George Chalmers, Cleveland; Mrs. Curtis Sohl, Columbus vs. Mrs. J. K. Patterson, Cleveland; Mrs. Julian Tyler, Cleveland vs. Mrs. Lilah Russel, Dayton.

Canzoneri Beats McGraw; Ready for Mandell Bout

NEW YORK, N. Y., July 10—Tony Canzoneri has removed the final barrier that stood between his lightweight title fight with Sammy Mandell in Chicago on Aug. 2.

He all but slaughtered Phil McGraw for 10 rounds before some 8,000 customers at the Queensboro stadium last night. The only mark brought out of the scrap by Canzoneri was a mean cut over his right eye that will furnish a fine target for the sharp shooting champion's snaky lefts.

Hard Work Stops Breaking of Training Rules, So Gleason Relates in Story

BY FRANK G. MENKE

BOYS will be boys even if they are stars in the athletic firmament. And when the boss is away even the most docile are liable to bust out with a rash of mischief—especially if cards and dice happen to be among the household utensils. Sometimes they are caught; sometimes they escape.

And being caught, the punishment they receive depends upon who is the boss and what are his ideas as to discipline and penance. All of which recalls the time when William (Kid) Gleason was coach of the Chicago White Sox. That was in 1913.

The 'Kid' was sent to the Pasadena, California training camp with the Sox squad that year. A nice lot of boys and all that, but they saw nothing meritorious in this eight hours sleep plan so long as they sat up and swap yarns, shuffle pasteboards or 'roll dem bones.'

They stayed up very, very late—when they thought the 'kid' didn't know about it. He caught them a couple of times and let them off with a reprimand.

But, as the Kid spins the yarn, there came a time when too much became entirely too much.'

The Kid had to go to Los Angeles one evening. The prospect was that he would linger there all night. But Gleason transacted his business sooner than anticipated and was back in Pasadena by about 2:30 in the morning.

"And what did I find but all the cottages where the players were living lighted up and sounds of what you might call revelry trickling out of the partitions," quoth the Kid.

"Of course I might have gone in and busted up those games. But I hooked onto an idea to cure those babies. So I let them go on with their games. I went to bed and left a call for 5:45.

At 6 the Kid was in his togs. Then he made the rounds rousting out every player on the squad. Some had hardly flattened among the feathers when Gleason arrived with his 'Everybody up—and out!' orders. They obeyed, tired-eyed, weary in mind and muscle and wondering what it was all about.

'Climb into that dining room and get breakfast,' snapped the Kid. Silently they filtered into the eating department at 6:30. At 7 they were through. For half an hour Gleason let them sit around and speculate on the reason for it all. At 7:30 he barked:

'Out to the ball park—the whole lot of you.'

And out they went. Arriving there the Kid put them to work. He ran them around the park until they were dizzy. Then he had them labor with bat and ball. When they were reduced almost to exhaustion Gleason made 'em run the park circle again. And so it went from 8 o'clock until noon.

At 12:30 they had lunch. Upon its conclusion the Kid shipped the gang to Los Angeles where they were to play an exhibition game. No sooner did they reach the park than Gleason hurried them onto the field and for 90 minutes—right up to the moment the game began—he drove them to the limit.

"And while the game was in progress," grins the veteran coach, "I saw to it that every sleep-scoffer in that squad was kept busy. I kept the pitchers warming up who weren't working, kept pulling out starting players and sending in substitutes and when the starters got back to the bench I always could think of something to keep them in action.

"When the game was over the boys heaved one of those relief sighs. But it wasn't a long one. I interrupted it by ordering them to run around the Los Angeles park and I kept them at it until it was almost dark. I had in mind the idea of making them walk back to Pasadena—walking is such a fine exercise—but I abandoned that for fear the whole gang would die of exhaustion on the way.

"After that particular day and date I never had any trouble enforcing the plenty of sleep rule."

Lewis Fails To Recover Crown from Sonnenberg

BOSTON, Mass., July 10—Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, was today looking for new fields to conquer.

For the former Dartmouth football star successfully defended his title here last night when he defeated Ed 'Strangler' Lewis of Chicago by taking two falls out of three.

NATIONAL LEADERS IN FOR FEW DAYS OF HECTIC MERRIMENT

Pirates Meet Phillies and Cubs Play Series with Giants

NEW YORK, N. Y., July 10—The sober portion of the National league's upper crust—meaning Pittsburg, Chicago and New York—seem in for a few days of hectic merriment.

For the leading Pirates open today in Philadelphia where they may find more than a little trouble in subduing Klein, O'Doul, Hurst and the remainder of the Phillies.

While all this is going on in the Quaker City those two old boy friends, the Cubs and the Giants, will be mixing it here. The Giants picked up a game on the Cubs yesterday by whipping Cincinnati for the third straight time while the Cubs were losing to the Braves and are now only two and one-half games behind. So no brow wrinkling is necessary to see what the present five game series means to both clubs.

Sunny Jim Bottomley slammed out two homers to give the Cards a 10 inning win over the Phillies.

Chase Dudley, Uncle Robbie's prize rookie, cinder-balled the Pirates to death for seven innings but lost his potency in the eighth and ninth and the Bucs scored three to take the game and sweep the series.

Things are slowly picking up in the American sector. Yesterday Papa Faber bested Grandfather Quinn and the White Sox took the final tilt from the Athletics. In St Louis Babe Ruth slammed out his eighteenth. Herb Pennock staved off a ninth inning gallop by the Browns and the Yanks took another to gain a full game and place them only seven and one-half games in the rear of the Mackmen. It seems as if there yet might be a race.

RAIN STOPS PLAY IN FIRST LEAGUE; FOUR CONTESTS TONIGHT

Asbury-Lutheran Title Is Outstanding Battle on Schedule

FOUR more contests were added to the list of unplayed games in the Marion recreation ball league when rain last night prevented the First Sunday School loop from going into action.

Tonight three postponed games in the second league and one in the first are scheduled. Outside of the Lutheran-Asbury tilt at Lincoln nothing exciting is expected to develop. Asbury is tied with Lee Street for first place and must win to keep in the race. The Lutherans, who are expected to win a protested game now before the commission are also listed as championship timber.

The Asbury-Lutheran game is listed with the Kappa-Eagle clash Friday night as the outstanding contests on this week's recreation schedule.

Certified public accountants report choice of 2,003 New Yorkers in test of the 4 leading cigarettes

We hereby certify that we supervised and audited a public "concealed name" test of the four leading cigarette brands at 1741 Broadway, New York City, during the period of March 2 to March 5, 1929, inclusive. The test was open to the general public. Everyone who stepped into the display room was invited to smoke one each of the 4 "masked" brands and to indicate which cigarette his taste liked best. We further certify that the following summary correctly sets forth the complete results of this test.
